TWENTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT.

To the Board of Directors of Bryn Mawr College:

The President of the College respectfully submits the following report for the twenty-second academic year of Bryn Mawr College, from October 1, 1906, to September 30, 1907.

Important changes took place in the membership and constitution of the governing boards of the college during the year 1906-07.

The death of Mr. Thomas Scattergood of Philadelphia, a member of the Board of Trustees and also of the Board of Directors of Bryn Mawr College, occurred at Naples on the 18th of April, 1907, in the sixty-sixth year of his age. Mr. Scattergood was elected a member of the Board of Trustees in 1894, and a member of the Board of Directors in 1906, and from the time of his election in 1894 until his death was an active member of the Finance Committee and also of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds. Except when prevented by illness, he was seldom, if ever, absent from meetings of the board or of the committees on which he served, and his sound judgment and wide financial experience were of great assistance to the college. His earnest interest and valuable services will be deeply missed. The memorial resolutions passed by the Board of Trustees and by the Board of Directors will be found in Appendix XI of this report.

Mr. Henry Tatnall of Philadelphia, who had been elected a Trustee in 1894 and a member of the Board of Directors in 1906, and had served the college as Treasurer since 1894, as a member of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds since 1894, and as Chairman of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds since 1904, resigned from both boards in May, 1907, on account of pressure of other business. His resignation was accepted with much regret.

At a meeting of the Trustees held October 19th, 1906, the Board of Directors of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College was organised in accordance with the changes made in the charter of the college in the preceding year, and the following sixteen Directors were elected to serve for the ensuing year: Charles Hartshorne, David Scull, Albert K. Smiley, Edward Bettle, Jr., Howard Comfort, Justus C. Strawbridge, Thomas Scattergood, Henry Tatnall, James Wood, Rufus M. Jones, Alexander C. Wood, M. Carey Thomas, Francis R. Cope, Jr., Annie Crosby Emery Allinson, Elizabeth Butler Kirkbride, and Mary E. Garrett. Mrs. Allinson and Miss Kirkbride had been nominated, as provided for in the charter, by the Alumnae Association of Bryn Mawr College to the Trustees for election as Directors, Mrs. Allinson to serve as a Director for six years and Miss Kirkbride to serve as a Director for three years; and in accordance with the provisions of the charter authorising the election of a sixteenth director at large, Miss Garrett was elected by the Trustees to fill this position.

The new Board of Directors met for the first time on November 16th, 1906, and assumed the governing and administrative control of the college committed to it by the Board of Trustees.

By the change which thus went into operation the graduates of the college were for the first time directly represented in its control and for the first time also women were adequately represented in the Board. From the opening of the college in 1885 until 1902, when the President of the College was elected a Trustee, the Board of Trustees consisted entirely of men, and until the present year no other woman had been elected to the membership on the board. In this feature of its organisation Bryn Mawr College was unique, all other colleges for women having women on their governing boards. It is a matter for sincere congratulation that this important change in the government and administration of the college was made unanimously by the Board of Trustees.

The organisation of privately endowed colleges and universities in the United States is sui generis, and very different from the organisation of institutions of learning in other countries. To all intents and purposes, privately endowed colleges are financially and academically independent of the government of the country, state, or city in which they are situated, and for this reason the possibilities of educational development, or of educational decline, are very great. Their boards of government are usually self-perpetuating, and as the services given by the members of these boards are entirely voluntary and without emolument of any kind the continuance of privately endowed institutions depends upon the self-sacrificing devotion and initiative of their trustees, or directors. For this reason it is highly desirable for such boards to secure as members a fair proportion of deeply-interested alumnae, whose ideals of scholarship have been formed by the college or university on whose governing boards they are later to serve.

In France, Italy, and other European countries the universities are state institutions, their instructors are state officials, and their academic standards are regulated by the state. This is true even in Germany, where the professors have the right of nominating to the state individual instructors for appointment to professorships. In England the constitution of Oxford and Cambridge is more like that of our private foundations. They are free corporations originally founded on an ecclesiastical basis governing themselves through their professors or lecturers, subject, however, to the control of their graduates. Although they operate under the general supervision of parliament, the state has nothing to do with their ordinary administration. They differ, however, from private university foundations in the United States in that their source of authority is in reality the majority vote of their masters of arts. They are not governed by self-perpetuating life boards. London University, Liverpool University, Manchester and other newer foundations are corporations operating under acts of parliament subject to the approval of the sovereign. London University, for example, is governed by a council operating under statutes and regulations approved by parliament, consisting of twenty-one members chosen from among the life governors or donors, the proprietors or subscribers to the university, and the fellows or distinguished students of the university.

In the United States, if we select from the list of the 453 so-called colleges the 58 colleges which by common consent would rank first in educational standards, numbers of students, and endowment, we find that 39 of the 58 are private foundations, and that these 39 are by far the most important educational institutions in the United States, only six of the larger state universities coming into competition in these respects with the private foundations. It is noticeable that the two privately endowed universities recently founded in the west, Chicago and Leland Stanford, Jr., have given a great educational impetus to Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and California, the four state universities in their immediate neighborhoods. Our state universities are governed immediately by the state, their boards of regents being chosen directly by the people or the legislature, or by state officials. The state university of Michigan, for example, is governed by a board of nine regents, eight elected by popular vote, and the president of the university. The state university of Wisconsin is governed by a board of fifteen regents, thirteen elected by the state legislature, and the state superintendent of public instruction and the president of the university ex-officio. The state university of Illinois is governed by twelve regents, nine elected by popular vote, two state officials and the president of the university. The university of California is governed by twenty-three regents, six state officials, the president of the university and sixteen regents appointed by the governor.

A careful study of the development of privately endowed universities and their influence on state universities seems to me to show conclusively that the future of higher education in this country rests chiefly with the privately endowed institutions, and in the main with their self-perpetuating governing boards. It becomes, then, a matter of vital educational importance to organise these boards so that they may represent the most enlightened and progressive opinion. Such boards must not be so large as to make full and free discussion impossible, or to necessitate committee management, nor must they be so small that varied interests, especially the interest of the graduates of the college in their alma mater, cannot be adequately represented. I believe that in the organisation of our Board of Directors an important step has been taken in the solution of this problem.

The Faculty of Bryn Mawr College met with a great loss in the death of Professor David Irons, Professor of Philosophy. Professor Irons died suddenly on January 23, 1907, after an illness lasting only a few hours. Although he had not been well for the past three or four years, his death was wholly unexpected. He was born in Dundee, Scotland, in 1869, and was a distinguished graduate of the University of St. Andrews, where he took the degree of Master of Arts with honors in 1891, and afterwards won the Ramsey Scholarship, which he held from 1891 to 1892, and the Ferguson Scholarship, which he held from 1892 to 1894. He held a Fellowship in Philosophy at Cornell University in 1892, and studied at the Universities of Berlin and Jena from 1893 to 1894. He took the degree of doctor of philosophy at Cornell University in 1894, and held the positions of Lecturer in Philosophy in Cornell University from 1894 to 1896, Acting Professor of Philosophy in the University of Vermont from 1896 to 1897, and Instructor in Philosophy in Cornell University from 1897 to 1900. In 1900 he came to Bryn Mawr College as Associate in Philosophy and head of the department of philosophy. He was appointed Associate Professor in 1902, and Professor of Philosophy in 1905. His chief interest was in ethics. In 1903 he published a study on the Psychology of Ethics, and he was the author of a number of articles and reviews in the Philosophical Review and other philosophical periodicals. A memorial service was held in Taylor Hall at three o'clock on January 26th, attended by the Directors, academic staff, and students of the college. The Rev. Charles Mellen Tyler, Sage Professor of the History and Philosophy of Religion, in Cornell University, a former teacher and personal friend of Professor Irons, conducted the service. Professor John Grier Hibben, Stuart Professor of Logic in Princeton University, another personal friend, Professor George A. Barton, on behalf of the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College, and the President of the College were the other speakers. In Appendix XII to this report will be found the memorial resolutions adopted by the Board of Directors, the Faculty, the Alumnæ Association, the Graduate Club, and the Undergraduate Association of Bryn Mawr College. The Undergraduate Association and the Graduate Club purchased for $500 Professor Irons' library of 541 volumes, an unusually complete collection of English philosophical works of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and presented it to the college as a memorial of their affection and gratitude.

Two of our senior professors, Professor Hermann Collitz and Professor Charles McLean Andrews, resigned at the close of this academic year to accept professorships especially created for them in the Johns Hopkins University. Their loss to the college will be very great.

Professor Hermann Collitz, Ph.D., was called to Bryn Mawr from a privatdocentship in the University of Halle in the autumn of 1886 as Associate Professor of German Literature and Language; in 1897 he was elected Professor of Comparative Philology and German, which chair he has held until the present time. During these twenty-one years he has devoted himself unremittingly to the interests of the college, and has also written and published extensively in his special field of work. Many graduate students of teutonic philology and German have studied with him and have testified to the inspiration they have received from working under an active investigator in comparative teutonic philology. Professor Collitz is the most eminent scholar in this field in the United States.

Professor Charles McLean Andrews, Ph.D., was elected Associate in History in Bryn Mawr College in the autumn of 1889, Associate Professor in 1894, and Professor of History in 1898. He has been in the service of Bryn Mawr College for the past eighteen years. During this period Professor Andrew's courses in minor and major history, and his post-major and graduate work have been elected by many eager and well-trained students. He has been eminently successful as a teacher in both graduate and undergraduate work. He has taken great pains to train his students, and has followed their later work after they have left the college with a sympathy and interest which are very rare. Professor Andrews has also added much to the reputation of the college by his published work, and is at the present time one of the chief authorities on colonial history in the United States.

Miss Helen Strong Hoyt, A.M., Bryn Mawr College, resigned the readership in English which she had held for nine years, at the close of the year. Much of the present excellent organisation of the work in English composition is due to her initiative and interest. She will be greatly missed in the English department.

A full list of other changes in the faculty and staff of the college, and the academic history of the new members of the faculty may be found in the first appendix to my report.

In the reorganisation of the work in history made necessary by the resignation of Professor Andrews it was decided to appoint an historian who had specialised in European history, as Dr. William Roy Smith, our Associate in History, is interested in American history. In addition to the appropriation usually made to the department of history, the Directors appropriated the sum of $1,000 for the purchase of books on European history.

For the first time since October, 1897, when the chair in psychology was established, adequate facilities were provided for the work in psychology in the new library building. A gift of $1,000 from Miss Garrett, a member of our Board of Directors, made it possible for Professor Leuba to equip his new laboratories with the necessary psychological apparatus. In granting Professor Leuba leave of absence for the year 1907-08, the Directors acting on his recommendation appointed as his substitute an experimental psychologist, Clarence Errol Ferree, A.M., M.S., a pupil of Professor Edward Bradford Titchener, of Cornell University, and later an instructor in his laboratory. After Professor Leuba's return Mr. Ferree will organise undergraduate and graduate instruction in experimental psychology.

For several years past it has become evident to our scientific faculty, and especially to our professors of chemistry, that courses in physical chemistry must be provided. For the past two years instruction in this subject has been given by Dr. David Wilbur Horn of the department of chemistry, but the development of the work has been much hampered by lack of a proper laboratory and an adequate supply of apparatus. George Shannon Forbes, Ph.D., a pupil of Professor Theodore W. Richards of Harvard University, and a former demonstrator in his physical chemical laboratory, was appointed by the Board of Directors to fill the vacancy in chemistry caused by Dr. Horn's resignation. A laboratory for physical chemistry was provided in Dalton Hall during the summer, and a gift of $600 for apparatus will make it possible to give a satisfactory graduate course in physical chemistry during the ensuing year.

For the past seven years, indeed from the year 1899, when a committee of the faculty drew up the present Merit Law (which was passed by the Faculty and approved by the Trustees in the same year, but did not come into full operation until June, 1902), it has been evident to the faculty and the officers of administration, including the wardens of the halls of residence, that special pains must be taken to raise the academic standards of the body of undergraduate students. Not only the Merit Law, but many other regulations of the faculty have been passed with this object in view. The faculty's legislation of the past few years shows a strongly marked tendency not to permit exceptions to the rules of the faculty, but to insist upon the students individually and collectively accepting the standards of the faculty in academic work. In December, 1905, the Merit Law was added to and extended, and these additional provisions were duly approved by the Board of Trustees. These requirements came into operation during the academic year covered by this report. Every student who at the end of her junior year, or in February of her senior year, has received grades below merit in as many as one-half of the hours that she has taken out of the total of 120 hours which must be offered for the bachelor's degree is required to take one additional year in order to graduate. During this additional year and during the year which would have been her senior year had she been graduated in four years, she is put on probation and her work is carefully planned and watched by the petition committee of the faculty. She is given by this committee as nearly as possible twelve hours, a certain number of which shall count towards her degree, and in addition she is required to take a certain amount of specialised work in small classes which does not count towards her degree, but which will enable the petition committee to judge whether she is studying seriously. A brief summary of the practical working of the Merit Law and of these additional provisions may be found on page 50 of the report of the Assistant to the President, through whose office all such faculty rules are put into operation. Also in 1905, the Trustees passed a rule, to go into operation in the year 1906-07, that no student who has not obtained the grade of merit in as many as one-half the hours which she has taken out of the 120 hours required for the bachelor's degree may be permitted to take part in any college entertainment requiring preparation, or to hold any lucrative office in the gift of the college; and in January, 1906, they extended this rule to cover also nominations for any executive office in the Students' Association for Self-Government, the Undergraduate Association, the Christian Union, the League for the Service of Christ, the Editorial Board of The Lantern, and the Students' Building Committee.

In view of the above action taken by the Trustees and Faculty, it is worthy of note that at the luncheon given at the President's house to the graduating class of 1907, the senior who had been elected European Fellow stated, with the approval and assent of the other members of the class, that since the close of their sophomore year, that is, since June, 1905, it had seemed to them that the academic standards of the college had appreciably risen and that it had again become the custom among the students, as opposed to the practice during their freshman and sophomore years, to talk over with one another subjects discussed in their lectures or in the scientific laboratories.

Although an excellent beginning in raising the standard of work and thought among the undergraduates has been made, careful attention must be given to the subject throughout the next few years.

The college officers of administration are the same as in 1894-95, whereas the number of students has increased by 54 per cent. It became evident several years ago that we had outgrown our organisation. It has become impossible for the President of the College and the Assistant to the President, even with the assistance of the wardens as assistant advisers to the freshmen, to give the students the necessary advice in regard to their selection of courses, or to follow them as they should be followed with personal advice and counsel throughout their academic courses.

This matter of personal advice is probably the most difficult problem to be solved in college education in the United States. Various colleges have attacked it in different ways. In some colleges the students are divided up among the members of the faculty, who act as student advisers, but careful examination of the working of this system leads me to believe that it does not accomplish satisfactory results. The first interest of scholarly and productive members of a progressive faculty is in their teaching and research work, and even if the plan works well when it is first begun, the inevitable tendency seems to be for the members of the faculty either to neglect the interests of the students committed to their care, or to become involved in so much administrative work that they lose their position as productive scholars. Such a solution could not in any case be considered at Bryn Mawr, both because of the scholarly reputation of its faculty and because a majority of them are men, many of them unmarried. It has sometimes been suggested that older students might direct the work of younger students, but this would be at best a makeshift, because, as far as possible, experience should direct inexperience, and there are many mistakes that are common to youth as such, and these mistakes would be made almost as frequently by older as by younger students. A year ago Princeton University adopted the radical plan of adding forty-seven so-called preceptors (among whom are two former members of our Bryn Mawr College Faculty) to its teaching staff, with the rank of Assistant Professor and salaries averaging from $1,800 to $2,000 a year, paid from the interest of a fund raised by its alumni for the purpose. Each preceptor meets a little group of about twelve students frequently for reports and conferences on the courses they are taking, and prescribes and talks over with them related reading. This experiment is now in its second year of trial and is said to work well. Apart, however, from its expense, which puts it out of the question for Bryn Mawr, it remains to be seen whether such personally conducted students will prove to have the native independence of mind developed in the best students by more independent methods of instruction, and also whether preceptors of the kind Princeton has appointed—and of the kind colleges must obtain if the system is to work well—will be content to remain long as preceptors. The probability is that these preceptors will wish to deliver lectures like the other members of the Princeton faculty, and the question to be answered by experience is also whether, if they are not permitted to do so (and it will be impossible under the true preceptorial system), they will not deteriorate in mental quality like many of the Oxford and Cambridge dons who coach immature students for five to six hours a week for many years consecutively.

In order to meet the situation at Bryn Mawr, at least in some measure, the President of the College recommended to the Executive Committee in May, 1906, that Marion Reilly of Philadelphia, a graduate of Bryn Mawr College in 1901, who has since that time been pursuing her graduate studies in mathematics and philosophy in our graduate school with the intention of taking the degree of doctor of philosophy, should be appointed Adviser to the Students and Reader in Philosophy for the year 1907-08, and that the Directors of the College should look forward to reviving the office of Dean of the College, which had been done away with in 1894, when the former dean was elected to the office of President of the College which she is now holding. This action was approved by the Executive Committee, and it was arranged between Miss Reilly and the President of the College that she should spend the greater part of the year 1906-07 abroad completing her studies and that part of this time should be spent by her in residence at Newnham College, Cambridge, so that she might become familiar with residential life in English woman's colleges. In May, 1907, the Board of Directors appointed Miss Reilly Dean of the College and Reader in Philosophy, the appointment to take effect in 1907-08. Necessary and serviceable as this appointment cannot fail to be, it must be remembered that it will only partially solve the question of giving the undergraduate students the necessary advice and assistance in their college life. It will be impossible for the new Dean of the College to supervise even in moderate detail the study, reading, and arrangement of work of more than the 150 or 200 juniors and seniors, who will be under her special care. It will still be necessary for the President of the College and the Assistant to the President to spend as much time in advising students as they have hitherto spent. The Directors should look forward to appointing in the near future two or three assistant advisers to aid the Dean of the College in her duties.

The work of the tabulation of students' courses, the numbers of students attending each of the college classes, the arrangement of the schedule of lectures, the apportioning of the lecture rooms, the announcement of courses of lectures, the publication of the college programme, graduate pamphlet, and notices of lectures and other public functions, the formulation and the enforcement of rules enacted by the Directors and by the Faculty, and the keeping of accurate academic statistics—in short, all the work which in the modern subdivision of administrative work in colleges and universities is assigned to the different faculty deans—is now done, and admirably done, by the Assistant to the President. The organisation of the college, however, as regards the careful watching of the work of the students needs to be strengthened, and the appointment of the Dean of the College will be of great assistance in this direction.

During the past few years it has also become clear to all those familiar with the administrative work of the college that the administrative officers, especially on the business side, have not kept pace with the growth of the college or the great increase in the number of college buildings which has taken place in recent years. Since 1905, when Miss Frederika M. Kerr resigned the office of bursar, which she had held for seventeen years, it has proved impossible to secure for the salary appropriated to this position by the Directors a bursar with sufficiently wide financial experience to relieve the President of the College from the constant weight of financial anxiety. It has been necessary for the president in recent years, especially during the construction of the power plant, Rockefeller Hall, and the Library, to spend almost one-third of her time in supervising and following the work of the bursar's office. Likewise the organisation of the business side of the college was entirely insufficient to care for our increased material plant and equipment. The college buildings have more than doubled in value since 1904, and represent at the present time an expenditure of $1,463,299. Our college campus has also been greatly extended. In 1904 all that part of our grounds lying between Radnor Hall and Low Buildings and also the present site of the Library, and the lawns stretching between the Library and Rockefeller Hall and across the Kennedy lot to Yarrow were uncared for. The supervision and care of the buildings and grounds has up to the present time been performed through the president's office with the competent assistance of Miss Caroline Lewis, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, who began her work at the college in 1897 as private secretary to the president and was practically in charge of the buildings and grounds from this time. She was appointed Superintendent by the Trustees in the year 1901. Miss Lewis has, however, been able to give only thirty-three hours a week to this work. Indeed it would have been impossible under existing conditions to keep the buildings and grounds in their present state of efficiency had not Miss Lewis's devotion to the college been supplemented by that of our head engineer, Mr. George C. G. Gray, who has been in the service of the college since 1896, and has taken entire charge not only of the heating plant, but also of the plumbing and electric lighting. We also owe much in recent years to the faithful service of Mr. William H. Foley, who entered the service of the college in December, 1904, as Assistant Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds.

The reorganisation of the material side of the college had been postponed from year to year on account of the additional expense involved, but in the beginning of the year covered by my report it seemed to the Trustees and to the President of the College that the time had come when the situation must be faced and the President of the College relieved by the appointment of two additional officers, a Comptroller of Accounts who should be competent to take entire charge of the bursar's office and also to assist the Treasurer and Finance Committee in whatever ways they might direct, and a Business Manager, whose office hours should coincide with the hours of the numerous employees of the college, who should take charge of the buildings and grounds. The Trustees of the College had reached this conclusion before the Board of Directors was organised, and in appointing these two officers for the ensuing year the Board of Directors acted on the recommendation forwarded to them from the Trustees. Mr. James G. Forrester, who was at the time of his appointment filling the position of manager of the Imperial Trusts Company of Canada, was appointed Comptroller; and Mr. Alexander H. Campbell, who was at the time of his appointment holding the position of curator of St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H., which post he had filled for the past eighteen years, was appointed Business Manager. Mr. Forrester began his duties in July, 1907, and Mr. Campbell on September 23rd, 1907. Miss Lewis resigned her position as Superintendent to take effect September 30, 1907, and accepted again the position of Private Secretary to the President of the College which she had given up to become Superintendent at the request of the Trustees, in 1901. Our sincere thanks are due her for the unremitting attention she has given to our buildings and grounds during the past ten years of her faithful service.

After a careful consideration of the whole subject, the Directors decided that it was necessary to raise the price of board for all students in the college from $175 to $200, beginning with October, 1907. As the students are in residence exactly thirty-three weeks, this makes the price of board $6.06 per week. In order that this increase may not prevent students of moderate income from attending the college, it was decided at the same time to reduce the rents of sixty rooms from $125 to $100, thus making the total cost of board and residence in these rooms the same as it has hitherto been for students occupying less expensive rooms, namely $300. An effort will be made to distribute equally throughout the six halls of residence these cheaper rooms. Students who are unable to pay more than the minimum price for board and residence will be required to file a statement to this effect in the secretary's office, and the lowest priced rooms will be reserved for such students. As this reduction will make the total room rent yielded by the sixty rooms in question less by $1,500, it was further decided to raise the rent of a sufficient number of the larger single rooms and more attractive double suites $25 a year, so as to make the increase in their rental equal the decrease in the rental of the cheaper rooms. Tables of the room rents as they are during this year, and as they will be according to the arrangement for 1907-08, are appended.

The room rents in 1907-08 will amount to only $175 more than in 1906-07, so closely has the balance between the average increase and the average decrease been observed. The cost per year, including infirmary fees, for undergraduates living in the sixty cheaper rooms is $505. The cost per year for other undergraduates occupying single rooms is $530, although of course many are living more expensively in double or single suites.

In the academic year 1900-01 the tuition fee was raised from $125 to $150 and board from $150 to $175, and again in the year 1903-04 the tuition was raised from $150 to $200, so that since 1900 the total cost of board, room rent and tuition has been raised from $400 to $500 for students needing to economise, and to $525 for all other students. This increase does not represent the rise in the cost of living which has taken place during these seven years. It was, however, sufficient to lessen the numbers of undergraduate students, in the year 1902-03, when the higher charges began to be felt by incoming students, as will be seen by reference to table No. I in the report of the Assistant to the President. It is probable that the present increase will check our growth for a few years, but this is not to be regretted, as we have at the present time only thirty-seven unoccupied rooms in the college.

No change has been made in the price of board and room rent for graduates, which remains as in 1885, the increase in board having been balanced by a corresponding reduction in room rent. Practically all graduate students are fitting themselves by further study for the profession of teaching, and in most cases have earned by teaching the money to pay for this further study. It would therefore be a serious error in educational policy to increase their expenses, and would defeat one of the objects which the Founder of the college specifies in his will when he says that he wishes Bryn Mawr College "to educate teachers of a high order."

The new schedule of entrance examinations adopted by the Faculty and approved by the Directors, will go into operation in the spring examinations of 1908. The time of examinations has been extended from five to eight days. The advanced matriculation examinations in Minor Latin, Trigonometry and Solid Geometry have been placed on Monday and Tuesday of the second week, and the three examinations in Greek, which are taken by the smallest number of students, have been placed on Monday of the first week. This change is made so that in future it will not be necessary for candidates to be in the examination room more than three hours on any morning, or more than two hours on any afternoon.

Important changes in the calendar of the college year, to go into operation in 1907-08, were made by the Faculty and approved by the Directors. These changes removed certain irregularities in beginning and ending the Christmas vacation, and made the number of working days in each semester as nearly as possible equal. The holiday now given on Washington's birthday was cancelled and this holiday was added to the one day's vacation hitherto given at the beginning of the second semester, thus securing for the students a vacation of three days between the ending of the examinations of the first semester and the beginning of the second semester. It was also adopted as a principle that work should begin after the summer, Christmas and Easter vacations as a rule on Wednesday or Thursday, and that the college should close as nearly as possible on Wednesday of the week before Christmas, thus giving the students time to make their Christmas preparations without taking the time from their college work. Except Thanksgiving, all vacations will now close in the middle of the week and students will no longer be tempted to travel or unpack their trunks on Sundays. The Faculty also adopted registration under penalty of punishment at the beginning of the second semester.

Various fees and charges imposed by the Directors came into effect during this year, as follows: for every division of the entrance examinations cancelled and repeated a fee of five dollars; for every entrance condition taken after a student has received a certificate of admission a fee of three dollars; for every change of room from one hall of residence to another a fee of ten dollars; for every change of room in a hall of residence a fee of five dollars; for each diploma, including graduation expenses a fee of ten dollars additional, or twenty dollars in all; for every examination deferred on account of illness, or as a penalty by the Faculty for late registration a fee of five dollars. Hitherto only conditioned and advanced standing examinations have been charged for.

The Directors further ordered that all fees paid by students for examinations of any kind, with the exception of entrance examination fees, should be added to the appropriation for books for the library for the current year.

In certain college matters it has been very difficult to regulate the actions of the students without the assistance of fines. For example, in the preceding twenty years it had proved practically impossible to induce students by persuasion or admonition to hand in their registration of courses in time for the office to plan the work of the different departments. After the Directors passed the rule authorising the imposition of a fine of five dollars for late registration of courses, which went into effect in the college year 1905-06, there was no further difficulty. There had been constant trouble in the gymnasium both because students had neglected to take the required hours of exercise and drill, and because they failed repeatedly to keep their appointments for measurements and strength tests with the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics and the Visiting Physician. On recommendation of the President of the College and the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics the Directors authorised the imposition of a fine of one dollar for each period of exercise omitted during the college year, and in addition passed a rule requiring the student to make up the missing periods of exercise for which she had been fined within two weeks after the end of gymnastic work in the spring, under penalty of being required to exercise for double the number of periods missed and of paying an additional fine of two dollars for each doubled period. These rules were also extended to non-resident students, who are thus for the first time required, under penalty, to take the required amount of exercise. A fine was also imposed on students who missed their physical examinations, and on those who came late. The rules concerning fines went into operation in the second semester of the year covered by my report, and at once solved the difficulties with which we had been struggling since the opening of the college. Not only were practically all required periods of exercise taken within the required time, but students came promptly to the gymnasium for their physical measurements. In the year 1905-06 it took the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics and her assistant 136 hours to measure the same number of students who were measured in 85 hours after the rule concerning fines went into operation. This saving of time was due solely to the promptness with which the students kept their appointments. It was voted by the Directors that the fines imposed for gymnastic work should be appropriated for the purchase of apparatus and equipment for the gymnasium.

Mrs. Anna Woerishoffer of New York City founded, in connection with our graduate school, the Anna Ottendorfer Memorial Research Fellowship for the Study of Teutonic Philology and German Language and Literature in memory of her mother, the late Anna Ottendorfer. She handed over to the Trustees one hundred shares of United States Steel preferred stock of the par value of $10,000, which at present yields $700 a year. This fellowship is to be open for competition to women capable of independent research who are graduates of Bryn Mawr College or any other college of good standing and have completed at least one year of graduate work in Bryn Mawr College. It is a very welcome gift and is the first true research fellowship founded at Bryn Mawr College.

This year marks the completion of the building operations begun in June, 1902, when the trustees, alumnæ, and friends of the college succeeded in raising $250,000 for the library, and thus secured Mr. John D. Rockefeller's generous gift of $250,000, which, through his great kindness and the interest and sympathy of his son, Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was later increased to $455,000. A legacy of $50,000 left to the college by the late Mr. Joseph E. Gillingham enabled the trustees to complete the north wing of the library building. The building of this wing was begun in May, 1906, and finished in February, 1907. In the summer of 1906 about 50,000 books were moved from Taylor Hall into the stack and seminary rooms of the new library building, and we began using the main library building and the south wing when the college reopened in the autumn. In February, 1907, the seminary libraries were moved into the north wing.

The library is built of gray stone in the so-called collegiate Gothic, or Jacobean Gothic, style of architecture of the period of 1630, this being the date of Wadham College, Oxford, which was selected as a model for the building. The library forms three sides of an enclosed quadrangle surrounded with cloisters. The Class of 1901 gave the stone fountain in the centre of the quadrangle and the electric motor operating it. The main east front, 174 feet long, faces Taylor Hall at a distance of about 150 feet. Its principal entrance is opposite the tower door of Taylor Hall and is connected with it by a broad cement walk. The main building contains a three-story stack with accommodations for 88,000 volumes, and above this a large reading room extending over the entire main building, with large north and south end windows and eleven large windows in the long east front and in the garden front to the west. The tracery of these windows is copied from the windows of the dining hall of Wadham College, the President of the College having obtained the permission of the Warden of Wadham to send a photographer from London to take large photographs of them. The entrance porch is an exact copy of the entrance porch of Oriel College, Oxford, as it is shown in photographs and drawings before it was rebuilt after the fire in 1752. The reading room contains desks for 136 readers. Each desk is screened to a height of two feet, as in the British Museum reading room, to secure privacy. No books of reference are kept in the reading room. The alumnae of the college gave two thousand dollars to panel the reading room in oak after the design of the Wadham dining hall. The teakwood doors leading into this room and the carved teakwood screen in which they are set were given by the undergraduate students who were studying in the college in the year 1904-05, as a memorial to Mary Helen Ritchie, former Secretary of the college, who died during this year. The Class of 1899 has raised $1,000 for the gift of a large bronze clock to be placed in the main reading room connected with a master clock which is intended to control the clocks in all the college buildings.

Beyond the reading room in the south wing are the newspaper and magazine rooms. In the corresponding north wing is the art seminary and lecture room, containing the collections of photographs, vases and coins. On the floor below, on either side of the stack, are offices for the librarian and cataloguers, a study room for non-resident students, four cloak rooms, and two telephone closets. The north and south wings run parallel, about two hundred feet in length, and contain twelve seminary rooms for Greek, Latin, English, German, French, Italian, Spanish, philosophy, mathematics, history, economics, Semitics, and psychology, two seminary lecture rooms accommodating about fifteen students each, four interview rooms, a reading room and library for the use of the Students' Christian Union and League, twenty-four professors' offices arranged so that two offices adjoin the seminary room in each department, and the office of the Dean of the College. In addition, the first floor of the south wing contains two large laboratories for experimental psychology, a seminary room, a professor's office, a photographing room, and a lecture room seating thirty students. The basement in the north wing contains rooms for the Monograph Committee of the Faculty, the Alumnae Association, the Students' Association for Self-Government, and fire-proof safe rooms for the records and archives of the college. The library was built and furnished at a cost of $342,120.82, and we have in hand gifts, amounting to about $4,000, which will be used next summer to complete the decoration of the building.

The library with members of the library force in attendance is open continuously from eight o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock in the evening on week-days and from two o'clock until ten on Sundays. It is also heated and lighted all night, for the convenience of professors who wish to use their offices or seminary rooms, each member of the faculty being provided with a pass key.

The library has proved admirably adapted to its purpose, and the facilities it has offered, together with the new rules adopted by the Library Committee, have greatly increased its usefulness and the circulation of books. Reference is made to the Librarian's report for further details.

In assigning the offices to members of the faculty the Directors requested that each professor occupying an office should give at least two consultation hours a week, announcing in the college publications and on the bulletin boards the hours when students would be at liberty to come for conference and consultation. These consultation hours have been of great assistance to the students in their academic work.

After moving the library out of Taylor Hall, the Directors restored Taylor Hall to the condition in which it was originally. The doors between the central room and the east and west rooms on either side, which had been used as the library, were closed, the central room was converted into a professors' consultation room, and the west room, now called D, was seated with 85 desks, and the east room, E, with 81 desks. On the third floor all the partitions which had subdivided it into seminary rooms were taken out and two large lecture rooms were made exactly the size of those on the second floor, one of these rooms, H, being seated with 169 desks and the other, K, with 81 desks. The former professors' consultation room was converted again into a lecture room, L, and seated for 25 students. In the south wing the historical and political science seminary on the third floor is now used for office records and files. Taylor Hall now contains the following lecture rooms: A, 37 seats; B, 25 seats; C, 40 seats; D, 85 seats; E, 81 seats; F, 169 seats; G, 81 seats; H, 169 seats; K, 81 seats; L, 25 seats; whereas during the time it was used for the library it contained only 5 lecture rooms and 3 small seminary rooms.

Important improvements were made in Merion Hall, the oldest college hall of residence. The suite next to the drawing room on the first floor was changed into a students' sitting room. The warden's bedroom on the second floor and the bedroom adjoining were made into a large double suite, and a bedroom and private bathroom for the warden were made from the adjoining bedroom and sitting room. The former students' sitting room was changed into a double suite for two students, and the room above it, which had been used for two students without being subdivided, was subdivided and made into a double suite. The serving pantry was greatly enlarged, and the direct heating, which had given constant trouble in Merion from pounding in the pipes was changed to indirect and eleven rooms were put under thermostatic control. The plumbing throughout the hall was completely renewed. These changes cost $4,180.48, which, by vote of the Directors, will be paid for from the increased annual rental of the double suites.

During the year a new professor's house, Dolwen, was built for Professor Arthur Leslie Wheeler, on College Hill next to Tan-y-Bryn, at a total cost of \$9,000, which sum the Alumnae Association of the college loaned to the trustees at $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent interest from the endowment fund which they are raising for the college.

Certain changes were made in flat A of Yarrow East in order to give more rooms and a comfortable dining room.

The Athletic Association raised the sum of $41.74 to complete the upper hockey field and 325 to concrete the lower athletic field so as to be able to play later in the season and in wet weather. This work was done during the summer.

The College undertook the management of the skating pond. Four electric arc lamps were erected. The pond was surrounded by a wire netting. A gate house was built and a gatekeeper employed. Tickets were sold for one dollar to members of the college and two dollars to school girls in the neighborhood. Men, except members of the faculty, were excluded from the pond. It is hoped that the skating pond will soon meet the expenses of maintenance.

The Board of Managers of Low Buildings, with the approval of the Low Buildings Association, made extensive alterations in Low Buildings during the summer and autumn of 1906 at a cost of $1,706.92. The Association borrowed $1,000 to meet these expenses, which amount, together with the $706.92 additional cost, has been since repaid out of income. The former kitchen was divided across the middle, and the half nearer the coffee room was turned into a pantry, as the former pantry was entirely inadequate. The range was moved to the other side of the kitchen and an extension was built into the yard, enlarging the kitchen and making in addition a servants' dining room, a storeroom, and a refrigerator room; a bedroom and bathroom for the men servants and a laundry were built in the basement; the dis-used kitchen, servants' room and pantry of the first floor apartment in the west wing were converted into a bedroom and office for an assistant housekeeper; the servants' entrance was made available for trunks, all trunks having hitherto been brought in through the main front entrance; a door was cut into the hall so that it would no longer be necessary for servants to go through the coffee room in order to answer the door-bell; the porches, which had begun to rot, were rebuilt and repaired at a cost of $42.50; and certain defects in the working of the heating system, including the installation of a fresh air duct, were remedied at a cost of $53.50. An extension to the northeast wing was begun in May, 1906, and completed and occupied by October 8, 1906. This extension consists of a housekeeping apartment of five rooms on two floors, a kitchen, a servant's room, a bathroom, and two porches; and on the third floor a sitting room and two bedrooms with private porch. The apartment is now occupied by Professor and Mrs. J. Edmund Wright, and the suite by a former student and her mother. This extension cost $3,385, the money for which was loaned to Low Building Association by Dr. Isabel Maddison and Mrs. J. Edmund Wright.

Our experience during the past two years has proved to the administration of the college, the two physicians in attendance, and the wardens that a new infirmary is almost a necessity. The special attention of the Directors is called to the reports of the Attending Physician and the Visiting Physician of the College, which emphasise the very unsatisfactory conditions under which students who are ill must be cared for.

An extension to the gymnasium is equally needed, and an effort should be made to enlarge it as soon as possible. The area of working floor space is only 1,716 square feet. From forty to sixty students are required to use this floor space at one time. The dressing room space is entirely inadequate, about one and one-half square feet being allowed to each student. From sixty to ninety students use at the same time for egress and ingress a small hallway twelve feet five inches by fourteen feet ten inches, which also contains a telephone booth, table, chair, water cooler, and a large cloak rack. The skirts and coats of forty students are often thrown in heaps on the floor because there is barely rack room for twenty students. The cramped conditions have become almost intolerable. Private dressing rooms for physical appointments and an enlarged and ventilated measuring room are sorely needed. There are practically no bathing facilities. The four shower baths are used in connection with the swimming pool only.

In connection with gifts made to the library and other gifts which have been generously offered to the college by different classes, the Board of Directors passed the following important resolution on April 19, 1907: "In view of the importance of architectural and artistic unity, all gifts affecting the architectural appearance of college buildings and grounds, or the inside decorations of academic buildings, should be designed under the direction of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds for the approval of intending donors."

The Directors invited the Friends' Summer School of Religious History to meet at the college from June 14th to June 22nd, 1907. The school met in Taylor Hall and the library, and Pembroke East and West were kept open for those who wished to reside on the campus. Miss Martha G. Thomas and Miss Patterson, the warden and housekeeper of Pembroke, presided over and managed the hall. The Students' Christian Union also held a conference at the same time in connection with the Friends' Summer School of Religious History, and the Directors granted permission to the members to reside in Radnor Hall. Miss Virginia Stoddard and Mrs. Miller, the warden and housekeeper of Radnor, presided over and managed the hall. Our thanks are due to the two wardens and the two housekeepers, who generously gave up part of their summer vacation to act as hostesses on behalf of the college.

The Colonial Dames met on May 3, 1907, in the cloister of the library to dedicate a tablet to commemorate Mrs. Elizabeth Duane Gillespie in whose honor they had founded a scholarship at Bryn Mawr College.

The annual conferring of degrees took place on June 6th, the address being delivered by His Excellency the British Ambassador, the Right Honorable James Bryce, on "Has the Education of Women Distinctive Aims?" Seventy-one students received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Eight students received the degree of Master of Arts; one having received the degree of Bachelor of Arts of Bryn Mawr College in 1893, one in 1902, three in 1905, and three in 1906. One student was recommended for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

The Alumnæ Association of Bryn Mawr held its annual meeting at the college in February. After the meeting the Alumnæ Association lunched at the Deanery on the invitation of the President of the College to meet the Academic Committee.

The attention of the Directors is especially called to the full information in regard to the working of the college during the past year given in the appendices to this report. The appendices contain the list of reappointments and changes in the instructors and officers for the year 1907-08; a list of the fellowships and scholarships awarded for the year 1907-08; the names of candidates receiving degrees during the year; a list of the speakers who have addressed the college; a list of the college preachers during the year; the gifts made to the college during the year; the titles of the scientific publications of the faculty during the year; a tabular summary of the courses of instruction; and reports made to the President of the College by the Assistant to the President, the Librarian, the Directors of Athletics and Gymnastics, the Attending Physician of the college, and the Visiting Physician of the college.

Respectfully submitted,

M. CAREY THOMAS.

December 20, 1907.

Report of the Assistant to the President.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit to you a statistical report on the students of Bryn Mawr College for the academic year 1906-07, and also an account of the regulations of the Directors and Faculty which were administered through my office.

The entire number of students enrolled during the year was 437. There were seventy-five graduate students, including fellows. The number of graduates was over 17 per cent of the whole number of students.

Statistics of Graduate Students.

II. Geographical Distribution of Graduate Students.

The seventy-five graduate students enrolled during the year came from the following states and countries:

Pennsylvania	25	Alabama	1
New York	7	District of Columbia	1
Indiana	4	Illinois	1
Maryland	4	Maine	1
Ohio	4	Mississippi	1
Kansas	3	Missouri	1
Massachusetts	3	New Hampshire	1
Connecticut	2	New Jersey	1
Iowa	2	South Dakota	1
Kentucky	2	England	1
North Carolina	2	Germany	1
Rhode Island	2	Canada	2
Wisconsin	2		75

These seventy-five graduate students may be classified as follows: three non-resident, holding European fellowships, (two studying abroad, while one has deferred the holding of the fellowship); one, holding a European fellowship studying at Bryn Mawr College and counted as a graduate scholar; ten holding resident fellowships; twenty-four holding graduate scholarships; eight members of the college staff, and thirty-one graduate students holding no official appointment from the college. Fifty were resident and twenty-five non-resident.

III. Number of Years of Graduate Study.

- 31 in their first year of graduate study.
- 13 in their second year of graduate study.
- 14 in their third year of graduate study
- 3 in their fourth year of graduate study.
- 6 in their fifth year of graduate study.
- 3 in their sixth year of graduate study.
- 4 in their seventh year of graduate study.
- 1 in her ninth year of graduate study.

IV. Studies Elected by 72 Graduate Students in Residence.

Under each subject all the graduate students electing work in that subject are included.

These 362 undergraduates may be classified as follows: 314 resident, 48 non-resident, 356 candidates for a degree, 6 hearers.

Of the 356 candidates for a degree 72 were Seniors and 68 of these received their degree in June; 92 were Juniors; 96 were Sophomores, and 96 were Freshmen.

In addition to those who graduated 47 undergraduates left during the year, or at its close, for the following reasons:

On account of ill health	10
To go to another college	1
On account of ill health and unsatisfactory work	3
Heavily conditioned (three of these were required to leave)	7
Needed by family	11
For financial reasons	1
Married	1
To travel abroad	1
To study music	1
On account of death of parents	2
Excluded from degree	1
Asked to leave on account of unsatisfactory conduct	1
Work for degree could be completed with- out attendance	3
Reasons not stated	4
Total	47

The students who left were from the following classes: Seniors, 3; Juniors, 11; Sophomores, 17; Freshmen, 16.

119 students entered the college as freshmen in October, 1903. Of these 63, or 52.9 per cent, graduated after the regular four-year course.

The average age of the class graduating in June was 22 years and 7.6 months; of the class graduating in February, 24 years and 4 months.

The median age of the class graduating in June was 22 years and 8 months; of the class graduating in February, 24 years and 3 months.

Since this was the first class to enter under the new regulations the percentage of those entering with no conditions was noticeably high.

X. Comparative Table of Percentage of Freshmen Entering Without Matriculation Conditions, October, 1890—October, 1906.

This table includes only those entering in October of each year and takes no account of conditions in punctuation and spelling. Up to 1897 the proportion of students entering free from conditions to all the entering students, including honorable dismissal students, was taken. After 1897 the students who entered on honorable dismissal were not counted in taking the percentage. It is therefore misleading to compare the two sets of percentages.

In 1890	25.0%	In 1898	26.9 %

Statistics of the Merit Law.

From June, 1902, till June, 1907, eighteen students have been excluded from their degrees under the Merit Law, but two of these students remained at college without definitely working for a degree. Several students with low grades have left the college without graduating.

The rule regulating the work of members of the junior class who had as many as half their hours below merit came into operation for the class of 1907, and at the end of the year, 1905-06, nine students were placed on probation and two students were cautioned. One of the nine students placed on probation left the college and the remaining eight, now counted in the class of 1908, were under the care of the Petition Committee during the year, 1906-07. Of these, six did satisfactory work during the first semester and two made an unsatisfactory record in the mid-year examinations. Of these two, one did not wish to return to the college or to take a degree, and the other, partly on account of ill health, decided to leave college at the end of the year. The students who were cautioned improved the quality of their work and graduated in 1907. After the mid-year examinations one additional student was placed on probation.

After the final examinations in May, 1907, only two students fell under the operation of the rule as compared with nine in May, 1906. One of these had planned to stay only three years in the college, the other is continuing to work for her degree in the class of 1909. Four of the nine above mentioned students left in June, 1907, without graduating, one being excluded from a degree by the Merit Law. Hence the Petition Committee will have under its care in 1907-08 six students, four in the class of 1908, and two in the class of 1909.

Registration of Attendance at Lectures.

The attendance of each student at her lectures was registered throughout the year in the same way as in the year, 1905-06. After the students had registered the courses they expected to attend, mimeographed cards were sent out to all professors each week giving in alphabetical order the names of the students in their classes. The instructor marked on the cards the absences of the students at each lecture during the week and returned the cards at the end of the week to the office. The absences were then transferred to special cards for each student so that for each student a card was prepared showing the day and hour of each absence and noting excuses on account of illness or for other reasons. In seven classes of over fifty students student monitors were appointed to mark the absences. In all nearly 5,000 cards were sent out and tabulated in the course of the year. The cards were referred to constantly by the office and by members of the faculty, and students whose attendance was irregular were cautioned.

Report of the Head Librarian.

To the President: Madam,

As head librarian of Bryn Mawr College, I have the honor to present to you the following report on the work of the Library for the year October 1, 1906, to September 30, 1907:

Accessions.

Total number of volumes accessioned from the opening of the library to September 30, 1907.....	54,568
Total number of volumes withdrawn up to September 30, 1907	1,709
Actual number of volumes in library September 30, 1907	52,859

In addition to this total of accessioned volumes the library possesses a collection of books on comparative religion presented by Mr. Albert J. Edmunds of Philadelphia, which has not yet been accessioned or counted. This collection is estimated at about 200 volumes. The total number of volumes belonging to the library is therefore about 200 more than the recorded accessions.

During the year 3,497 volumes, exclusive of Mr. Edmunds' gift, were added to the library.

The accession statistics (exclusive of Mr. Edmunds' gift) for the year, 1906-07, are as follows;

By purchase	1,515
By binding	541
By exchange	10
By gift	1,179
Replaced	10
Christian Union Library	242

Total	3,497

These accessions are divided by classes as follows:

General works	167	volumes
Philosophy	600	"
Religion	386	"
Sociology	251	"
Philology	109	"
Science	542	"
Useful Arts	42	"

Gifts.

During the year 1,179* volumes and 300* pamphlets were presented to the library. A detailed list of donors is appended to this report. The most important gifts of the year were (1) the David Irons Memorial Library of 541 volumes, presented by the Undergraduate Association and the Graduate Club, and (2) the private library of Mr. Albert J. Edmunds of Philadelphia, presented to the college by Mr. Edmunds. To the first gift no conditions are attached. It consist of complete collections of the great philosophers, works on ethics, and some seventeenth and eighteenth century books, and one Elzevir. To the second gift is attached the condition that it shall be kept together until after Mr. Edmunds' death and shall then be catalogued and arranged under subjects. On account of this condition, the books of this collection have not been accessioned or catalogued, but have been shelved, without cataloguing, in the Semitic Seminary.

Loan Collection on Burgundian History.

Although not a gift, the collection of books on Burgundian history from the library of their father, the late Charles

*This is exclusive of Mr. Edmunds' gift, which is not yet counted.

Foster Kirk, lent by the Misses Kirk should be mentioned here. This collection, the property of the Misses Kirk of Bryn Mawr, was deposited with the library in October, 1906, to be used, if desired, by advanced students of history.

Cataloguing.

The cataloguing statistics of the year are:

Books catalogued	3,561
Cards written	10,300
Seminary cards	66
New volumes of periodicals, continuations, etc., entered	1,047

Miss Edna Lucy Goss was appointed special cataloguer for ten months, beginning October 1, 1906, to work under Miss Sears' supervision on the change of the catalogue to dictionary form. During this time she recatalogued all the class of history, including travel, biography, and archæology, except a few sets of periodicals which were left as not needing recataloguing immediately. In addition she began to recatalogue the class of sociology. Some recataloguing was also done in the classes of French and German literature.

In addition to the cataloguing of the regular accessions of the year, the Mary E. Stevens Memorial Library, which was presented to the college in 1905-06, has been completely catalogued. Part of this cataloguing was done by the regular staff previous to October, 1906, and the work has been completed this year by Miss Bessie H. Jennings who, in March, 1907, was appointed as an extra assistant on part time.

A brief summary of the progress of the dictionary catalogue and the revision of the catalogue, from June, 1904, the date when the work was begun, to September, 1907, is herewith presented.

Classes of books which have been recatalogued and have now full dictionary cataloguing:

1. All books dealing with literature in general.
2. All books in the class of American literature.

3. All books in the class of English literature.
4. All books in the class of Anglo-Saxon literature.
5. All histories of German literature.
6. All books in the class of Italian literature.
7. All books in the class of Spanish literature.
8. All books in the class of Russian literature.
9. All books in the class of Chinese and Japanese and other minor literatures.
10. The greater part of the collection of Sanskrit literature.
11. All books in the class of History.
12. All books in the class of Archæology.
13. All books in the class of Travel and Geography.
14. All books in the class of Biography.
15. A small part of the class of Sociology.

In the above classes all books have been revised and recatalogued except certain sets of society and periodical publications which do not need immediate recataloguing. In addition to this work of revision, all new accessions since June, 1904, have been given full dictionary cataloguing.

Special Funds.

Few special funds were donated during the year 1906-07. The following special funds were expended:

Sale of books and fines	$269.00
Hall Department Library fund	132.25
Special fund from Class of 1902 (income).....	25.00
For Semitic languages (gift of Mr. David Scull, Mr. Justus C. Strawbridge, Mr. Asa Wing and others).	500.00

In addition to the above funds, which were entirely library funds, a special gift of $500 was made by Miss Garrett for the equipment of the art department, including the purchase of books. As the greater part of this gift was used by Dr. Ransom for equipment other than books, it is not counted as a library fund. Of the total amount of $500, only $92.27 was spent on art books for the library.

Inventory.

The regular biennial inventory was taken in the summer of 1907. By September 30th all classes of the books had been checked over once, but the final hunting down of books listed during the inventory as missing had not been finished at this date. On September 30, 134 volumes were listed as missing, but this number will undoubtedly be greatly diminished when the final checking is finished. This preliminary list of missing books is divided by subjects as follows:

General works	6	volumes
Philosophy	2	"
Sociology	8	"
Philology	8	"
Science (principally books in Dalton Hall).....	25	"
Useful arts	6	"
Literature (all languages)	67	"
History, Biography, Travel, Archæology.....	12	"

No books were missing from the two classes of religion and fine arts. The list of books missing in Dalton Hall is large on account of the difficulty of taking an inventory of the geological library. In this library it was impossible to take an accurate inventory owing to the crowded condition of the room, and books had to be listed as missing here, which will probably be found when the request of the librarian for more room for this collection can be complied with.

Circulation.

In October, 1906, the new rules of the Library Committee placing a time limit on the books drawn out by students went into effect. At the same time a very marked increase in circulation was noticeable. It is impossible to give the exact increase, as no detailed statistics of circulation had been kept while the library was in Taylor Hall. When the present librarian first took charge, Miss Lord, the retiring librarian, stated to her that no circulation statistics had ever been kept because the circulation was too small to make it worth while.

Although the circulation increased each year, this continued to be the case while the library remained in Taylor Hall. As has been stated, no exact statistics of circulation for previous years are available, but from what data we have, the circulation was estimated as averaging from 500 to 600 volumes a month.

Beginning October, 1906, exact statistics of circulation during the college year were kept. These statistics are as follows:

Circulation Statistics from October, 1906, to May, 1907.

October, 1906	1,865	volumes
November	1,575	"
December 1-18 (18 days only)	1,074	"
January, 1907	1,660	"
February	2,614	"
March	1,852	"
April	1,810	"
May	1,527	"
Total for 8 months	13,977	"

This increase in circulation is in reality more striking than the figures indicate, as in 1906-07 periodicals and seminary books which had been previously circulated freely were for the first time restricted.

The very large increase in circulation shown above is attributed to two causes:

1. The greater accessibility of books due to their arrangement in order in the new building, and
2. The new rule of the Library Committee placing a time limit on books drawn out by students.

The first of the causes stated above needs no explanation. Of the second, it may be said that the operation of the new rule has been such that a book, which under the old rules of the library might be taken out in October and not returned until the following May, unless specifically recalled, thus being useless to the college during this time, is by operation of the new rule returned to the library in two or four weeks, appears again on the shelves and is available for use by other members of the college. The following table shows the comparative use of certain books selected at random, during the two years 1905-06 and 1906-07.

Hours of Opening.

From October, 1906, to June, 1907, the library was open from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. on week-days, and from 2 to 10 p. m. on Sundays, except during the Christmas vacation, when it was closed at 6 p. m. on week-days and all day on Sunday, Christmas Day, and New Year's Day.

The library was also closed on Thanksgiving Day and for two days during the Easter recess, when the tiled floors were cleaned and oiled. During the hours when the library was open there was a library assistant in charge at the loan desk constantly from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. From 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from 6 to 7.15 p. m. a member of the library staff was in charge, while from 5 to 6 p. m. and 7.15 to 10 p. m. a student assistant was in charge. On Sundays a member of the library staff was in charge from 2 to 6 p. m. and a student from 7 to 10 p. m. From 10 p. m. to 8 a. m. and on Sunday morning the stack was closed.

In the reserve book room upstairs a member of the library staff was in charge from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Students were in charge from 7.15 to 10 p. m. From 6 until 7.15 p. m. and on Sunday all day the reserve book room was closed. It will be readily seen therefore that long hours of opening have been covered at the two desks.

Christian Union Library.

In October the library of the Christian Union was installed in the Christian Union reading room in the new library building. During the year this library has been administered by the regular library staff, the shelves and room kept in order, and books charged and discharged. In addition to the books which are kept here, books from the main library numbering several hundred have been sent to this room during the year and reserved here for use for Bible class work, etc.

At the beginning of the year, the President of the College requested the librarian to take charge of the Christian Union library and to record and catalogue it as a part of the college library, and likewise directed the librarian, as this was not work which could be done legitimately in college time, to have it done in extra time by some member of the cataloguing department if possible, or some extra assistant from outside if necessary, the cost of the extra work to be paid by the Christian Union. It was finally arranged to have this work done by Miss Sears, who was paid by the Christian Union. The books of the Christian Union library were all carefully arranged, classified, and recorded in the library records and a separate catalogue for use in the Christian Union reading room was also made. Printed labels to indicate that the books belonged to the Christian Union and were to be kept in the Christian Union room were placed on the books.

New Library.

When the college year opened in October, 1906, the books in the stack were all arranged and ready for use, the periodical reading room and the seminary rooms of the south wing were in order, but the reading room was not quite finished and the whole of the north wing was unfinished. Within the first week the reading room was finished and in use. Temporary quarters were found for the five seminaries that were to have rooms in the north wing by using the philosophy seminary for both the philosophical and German seminaries, the Spanish-Italian seminary for the Spanish, Italian and French seminaries and by placing the Greek, Latin and English seminaries in the graduate lecture room on the second floor of the south wing. The professors who were to have offices in the unfinished north wing were allowed to use the study room for consultation and office purposes. In this way it was found possible to meet all needs without feeling any great inconvenience from the delay in completing the north wing.

In February, 1907, the north wing was finished sufficiently to allow the librarian to move the five seminary libraries mentioned above to their respective seminaries and the rooms were ready for use at the opening of the second semester. At the same time new shelving made in the college shops from plans and measurements furnished by the librarian was placed in the art seminary, and the building was practically completed except for certain details of furniture and equipment.

Superintendence.

During the first semester the janitorial force of the building had not been under the supervision of the librarian, but at the beginning of the second semester the President of the College requested the librarian to undertake the supervision of this work, as it seemed easier to control it within the building than from outside. Miss Bessie H. Jennings was appointed general assistant, partly to help the librarian with the extra work entailed by this change, partly to catalogue the Mary E. Stevens Memorial Library, only part of which had been catalogued up to this time.

In the spring of 1907 the Librarian was granted leave of absence for one year for travel in Europe. At the same time Miss Minnie E. Sears resigned her position as head cataloguer in order to travel and study abroad. Miss Mary L. Jones was appointed Acting Librarian for the college year 1907-08.

Report of the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to make the following report on the work of the department of athletics and gymnastics for the year 1906-07. At the beginning of the year the gymnastic department was entirely reorganised. The revised rules read:

1. A physical examination of every student is required twice each year. An annual medical examination by the Visiting Physician of the College is required of all students taking part in competitive athletics. Students not examined will immediately be taken off the sports' list.

2. Any student who is dissatisfied in regard to the omission of her name from the approved lists for the various sports shall be entitled to refer the matter at issue to the President of the College, who will arrange with the Visiting Physician of the College for the student to consult, at her own expense, a specialist selected by the College, to whom the student will be required in every case to present a note from the Visiting Physician, explaining the circumstances and asking for his opinion in writing. Such opinion will then be carefully considered and will, whenever possible, be accepted as sufficient authorisation for the student to play in the sport she desires.

3. Four periods of exercise must be registered each week by all resident and non-resident undergraduates and hearers. These periods may not be taken on the same day. Whole or half periods only may be registered. Exercise not registered within the fortnight it is taken will not count, and must be made up. Exercise taken on Sunday, or during college vacations, or during the time that a student has an official excuse, will not count. Delinquent exercise, or making up, exercise, may be taken on the same day as the regular exercise.

4. Exercise not taken within a fortnight of the required time will be put on the Delinquent List. Delinquent exercise not registered within a fortnight will be doubled.

5. At the end of the second semester, i. e., the Saturday before "finals," every student who has not finished the required periods of exercise shall pay a fine of $1.00 for each period due, and shall be required, in addition, to make up double the number of missing periods within the next two weeks, at the end of which time $2.00 must be paid for each period of exercise unregistered.

6. During November four periods of tennis or swimming or hockey or four drills, and in April four periods of tennis or swimming or basket-ball, or four drills must be registered. From Thanksgiving to April 1st two drills a week must be registered. Each student is excused two drills every four weeks; students not taking these excuses may count these drills to their credit.

7. Students who have not completed the required number of drills by the close of the gymnasium season shall be required to make up the missing drills, and shall pay a fine of $2.00 for each such appointment for special instruction, until the required number is completed.

8. No student may enter a class after the door has been closed. In all classes the regulation gymnasium suit must be worn.

9. Freshmen and sophomores are required to take one period of heavy and one period of light gymnastics a week, and sophomores may, in addition, take fencing or dancing. Juniors and seniors may elect light or heavy gymnastics, fencing or dancing, but may not continue in any class if unable to keep up to the required standard.

10. Two excuses are allowed every four weeks, and must be registered on the registration list in the week they are required, otherwise they are cancelled.

11. Special excuses for illness must be obtained from the Director of the gymnasium within the fortnight they are required. Excuses will be given for illness lasting not less than two days only, and will excuse classes for the current week only, and will not excuse drills previously omitted, for which, if not made up, a fine must be paid at the end of the year.

The principal changes incorporated in these rules are the medical examination of every resident student in the college, the rules in regard to obtaining excuses for omitting exercise, and the imposition of fines for failure to do the prescribed exercise. For competitive athletics especially it was considered important that the condition of the heart and lungs should be examined by a practicing physician as well as by the gymnastic department, and that a careful report of this examination should be kept. A card was drawn up on which the medical examination of each student could be entered in each year. It had been the custom for the Assistant to the President to send information to the Director of Gymnastics when a student was ill or for any legitimate rea-nastic record:

[illegible]

The opportunity to substitute athletic exercise for gymnastics through November and April was given to the students, since it was found that vigorous outdoor exercise and gymnastic classes could not be taken on the same day without undue physical strain, and that the outdoor exercise was at this season of the year as valuable as indoor work.

Fencing and classic dancing, or æsthetic gymnastics, were added to the general gymnastic course. Both these are advanced types of gymnastic work, and as the course is compulsory in all the four years of the college course the desire of the students for more advanced work was recognised as legitimate. Only one period a week of dancing or fencing was permitted to be taken.

During the last two weeks in November a light gymnastic class was held daily for students not substituting athletics. After Thanksgiving the regular classes began, the weekly schedule including four fencing classes, four classic dancing classes, six light gymnastic classes, five heavy gymnastic classes. One hundred and thirteen students registered for fencing, one hundred and twenty-six students registered for classic dancing. All the sophomores and freshmen are required to take one light gymnastic and one heavy gymnastic class a week.

The following excuses were granted in the year 1906-07 on account of physical inability; four sophomores were excused from heavy gymnastics, eight freshmen were excused from heavy gymnastics, and substituted an extra period of light gymnastics. Three seniors, two juniors, one sophomore, and three freshmen were excused from all gymnastic work.

The gymnasium was reserved in the mornings for individual corrective work for spinal curvature, defective posture, undeveloped chests, etc. Thirty-eight students were given special exercises. This work was not compulsory, and was taken in addition to the regular gymnastic course.

On March 25, 1907, an exhibition in fencing and classic dancing was given by the seniors and juniors, and a contest was held between the sophomores and freshmen in marching tactics, wand drill, Indian club drill, bar bell drill, apparatus work on the horse, parallel bars, and rope climbing. The contest was won by the sophomores, the points being: Sophomores, 113; Freshmen, 92.

From Thanksgiving to Easter a weekly class was held for the graduate students, at which there was an average attendance of twenty.

CALENDAR OF ATHLETIC EVENTS FOR THE YEAR 1906-07.

- October 5th—Hockey practice began.
- November 2nd—Hockey match vs. Belmont C. C.
- November 5th—Interclass hockey matches began.
- November 10th—Hockey match vs. Merion C. C.
- November 24th—Hockey match vs. Germantown C. C.
- November 27th—Hockey match vs. Moorestown C. C.
- December 4th—Hockey match vs. Belmont C. C.
- December 7th—Fencing club practice started.
- December 10th—Water polo practice started.
- January 10th—Swimming contest, preliminary.
- January 17th—Swimming contest, finals.
- February 11th—Track practice started.
- February 27th—Track meet preliminaries.
- March 7th—Track meet, finals.
- April 4th—Basket-ball practice began.
- May 6th—Interclass basket-ball matches began.
- June 5th—Basket-ball match vs. alumnae.

The Athletic Association completed the new hockey field and laid out three new tennis courts at the cost of $2,000, $800 of this being advanced by President Thomas.

Tennis.—The Athletic Association, for the first time, organised tennis on the same principles as all the other athletic sports. Class captains were elected who managed a class tournament held in each class. The captains chose their class team to enter the interclass tournament, and each captain entered one player for the college championship. Under this new system greater interest was taken in tennis generally and the tournaments were played off promptly. The class championship was won by 1907. The college championship was won by A. G. Hill, 1907.

Hockey.—Seventy-seven per cent of the resident undergraduates played hockey. The upper field was used by the first teams, the lower field, in bad condition, was used by the second team. There were nine teams of ten or eleven students each, and eighty-five students played on the teams. The class championship was won by 1907. The captains of the first teams were: E. Williams, 1907; L. T. Sharpless, 1908; E. D. Brown, 1909, and E. Denison, 1910. In the Bryn Mawr games with outside teams the college won four games and lost one. Twenty-one goals were scored and seven goals were lost during the season.

Lacrosse was played during the winter, but was not organised.

The Fencing Club was unorganised, but met for practice once a week.

Swimming.—The Class Championship was won by 1907. The records were as follows:

140-foot swim on front, 45 2-3 seconds.

140-foot swim on back, 49 2-5 seconds.

Dive for form.

Plunge for distance, 30 feet, 5 inches.

70-foot swim on front, 20 seconds.

70-foot swim on back, 23 2-5 seconds.

Swim under water, 70 feet.

Three records were broken in the contest: the 70-foot swim on front, 70-foot swim on back and the under-water swim.

The class relay race was won by 1910.

One hundred and forty-seven students were authorised to take swimming, seventy took swimming lessons.

Water Polo.—There were four teams; twenty-seven students played. Interclass games were held and the championship was won by 1907.

Track Athletics.—The Track Meet class championship was won by 1908. The college championship was won by A. E. Platt, 1909. The events and records were:

Fifteen-yard dash.

Hurdles.

Kick—16 inches.

Rope climb—12½ seconds.

Running high jump, 4 feet, 2 inches.

Standing high jump—3 feet, 5 inches.

Putting the shot—33 feet, 1 inch.

Tug-of-war.

Standing broad jump, 7 feet, 3½ inches.

Three broad jumps, 22 feet, 1 inch.

Hop, step, jump, 20 feet, 2 inches.

Fence vault, 4 feet, 6 inches.

Ring high jump, 7 feet, 4 inches.

Class relay race.

College records were broken in the rope climbing and three broad jumps.

The world's record was broken in putting the 12-pound shot.

Basket-Ball.—Fifty five per cent of the resident undergraduate students played basket-ball. There were eight teams, seventy-one students playing on the teams. The Class Championship was won by 1908. The captains of the first teams were: G. Hutchins, 1907; M. Plaisted, 1908; A. E. Platt, 1909; G. Kingsbacher, 1910.

Skating.—The skating pond was enclosed by a fence, and no one was permitted to skate who did not carry a ticket. Tickets were sold by the College to students and members of the faculty and staff and to students from the schools in the neighborhood.

Respectfully submitted,

CONSTANCE M. K. APPLEBEE,

Director of Gymnastics and Athletics.

Report of the Attending Physician.

To the President: Madam,

As a summary of the work done during the college year 1906-07, I make the following report:

Cases Treated.

SURGICAL:

The occurrence of 36 cases of tonsilitis, following a celebration at which a loving cup was used, suggests the advisability of ruling out a common drinking vessel on future occasions of like character.

Again, it is a pleasure to report that one case of chicken-pox and one case of German measles have been cared for without the appearance of secondary cases. We have continued rigidly to enforce isolation in the cases of a contagious nature, and it is rather remarkable that no secondary tonsilitis cases appeared after the epidemic following the use of the drinking cup.

Another student was operated on for acute appendicitis and made an excellent recovery, Dr. Robert G. LeConte having performed both the operation this year and the one last year.

It would seem right in this report to mention the case of the refusal of a believer in mental science to receive medical treatment. Her desperate illness with the danger of impending death, led us to rule that in future every student admitted to the college must submit to medical care and must report any disability promptly to the warden of her hall.

Yours very sincerely,

THOMAS F. BRANSON,
Attending Physician.

Report of the Visiting Physician of the College.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit the following report for the year 1906-07.

I. During the college year, October 4, 1906, to June 1, 1907, seventy patients were cared for in the college infirmary building. The total number of days' care amounted to 385. The capacity (4 beds) was frequently fully occupied, to the exclusion of other cases necessarily taken care of in their rooms in their respective dormitories. The total number of those so excluded was fifty-two. On one occasion twenty-two cases of tonsilitis were cared for in the halls. and probably as many more students who should have been in bed did not report illness because of the lack of possibility of adequate care.

The classification of Infirmity Cases is as follows

Abscess of ear	1
Bronchitis	8
Chicken-pox	2
Colds and Influenza	17
Concussion of brain	1
Conjunctivitis (infective)	3
Laceration of forehead	1
Measles	1
Mumps	3
Nervous exhaustion	2
Neuralgia	2
Pleurisy	1
Sprains	2
Tonsilitis	17
Miscellaneous	9
Total	70

II. The report of my personal work in the office and dormitories is as follows:

Physical examinations	154
Number of students' visits to office	688
Number of visits to students confined to their rooms..	8
Vaccinations	145
Total number of consultations	696

III. Tabulation of conditions treated.

MEDICAL:

Acne	1
Adenitis	1
Alveolitis	1
Arthritis	1
Bronchitis	2
Climatic depression	1
Colds	15
Conjunctivitis	2
Constipation	5
Haemoptysis	1

Wound of eyelid	1

GYNAECOLOGICAL:

Displacement of uterus	2
Menstrual Disorders:
Amennorrhœa	9
Dysmenorrhœa	4
Menorrhagia	4
Ovarian neuralgia	1

IV. Tabulation of students treated by classes (exclusive of physical examinations and vaccinations):

Graduates	19
Seniors	19
Juniors	15
Sophomores	16
Freshman	16
Freshmen	34

Total 103

The great need of a new infirmary cannot be too strongly urged. The present building is so utterly inadequate for the demands of the medical work, and the present methods of caring for the students when ill so unsatisfactory and expensive, that this whole department is entirely out of keeping with the rest of the college equipment. I trust that the efforts now being put forth to remedy the evil may be successful.

In conclusion I wish to repeat my recommendation of last summer, that the use of the loving-cup as a drinking vessel be prohibited. The experience of the year, with the large number of cases of tonsilitis following such use on one occasion, demonstrates the danger of the custom.

Respectfully submitted,

ELLA B. EVERITT,
Visiting Physician of the College.

Resolutions in Memory of Thomas Scattergood, Trustee of Bryn Mawr College from 1894 to 1907, and Member of the Board of Directors of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College from 1906 to 1907.

Born, October 11, 1841. Died, April 18, 1907.

Minute adopted by the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College at a special meeting held June 5, 1907 :

Thomas Scattergood was elected a Trustee and Director May 11, 1894, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Charles S. Taylor.

The loss to the board and to the college has been set forth on the minutes of the Directors. We, his colleagues, members of the Corporation, wish to place on these minutes some expression of our personal sorrow in the removal of one who has been so long our friend, and some tribute to his character.

He was of an earnest, intense nature, quick in forming his judgments and prompt in carrying them out, yet courteous in yielding his own views when the consensus of opinion of his associates differed from his.

As a companion and friend, he was hearty, sincere, and genial. Of a grave deportment, by training and habit, his genuine sense of humor and lively interest in all that went on around him made his company agreeable and desired.

He was conservative in his own beliefs, but liberal to those who saw truth differently. His religion was based on a simple, child-like faith in God, his Heavenly Father, and in His Son, Jesus Christ, his Saviour. Secure in this love and trust, he feared no changes which the years might bring, in forms and formulas.

In this faith he lived and in this faith he died.

To his widow and children we extend our sympathy, and would commit them to His care Who careth for them.

Minute adopted by the Board of Directors of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College at a stated meeting held April 19, 1907:

Information was now received of the death of our friend and colleague, Thomas Scattergood, at Naples, Italy, on the 18th instant.

Thomas Scattergood was elected a member of the Corporation and its Board of Directors on May 11, 1894, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Charles S. Taylor, a nephew of Dr. Joseph W. Taylor, founder of the college, and one of the thirteen trustees named in his will.

He took an active interest in the college—as indeed he did in everything with which he was connected—an interest evidenced by his regular attendance at meetings, and by his close attention to the work of committees, where his business and financial training and experience made him a much valued member, and he gave liberally to various college objects.

His naturally strong and alert mind had been well trained in Friends' schools in Philadelphia and at Westtown Boarding School, and upon this excellent foundation was laid the education which comes from much reading and study and constant mingling with men and large affairs, combined with extensive travel in this country and abroad.

But it was from another and the highest source that his real strength and power came. His Christian faith was strong, deep and vital. It governed his life. What he was, and what good work he did in the world—and he did much—had this highest inspiration and origin.

This is a great thing to say, and our friend never claimed great things for himself, but, now that he has gone, the lesson which his life teaches us may be pointed out. Those who joined that large gathering of his friends at the Memorial Meeting held in Friends' Meeting House, on Twelfth Street, had much to think of. The occasion itself was unique among Friends in Philadelphia, and there was the natural feeling of sorrow and loss which comes over one at such an hour. But, besides, there was the thought of the meaning of it all. It is written, "Men will praise thee when thou doest well for thyself," but those who met on that occasion came not from such motive, but to pay their tribute of affectionate respect to one who had tried to follow, however humbly and imperfectly, the example set before us in the Gospel.

He has fought a good fight, he has finished his course, he has kept the faith, and we may reverently believe that the crown of righteousness is his which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give, at that day, unto all who love His appearing.

Resolutions in Memory of Professor David Irons, Professor of Philosophy of Bryn Mawr College.

Born, 1869. Died, January 23, 1907.

Minute adopted by the Board of Directors of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College at a meeting held March 15, 1907:

The college has sustained a heavy loss in the death of Professor David Irons, which occurred January 23, 1907. He was Master of Arts of the University of St. Andrews, and Doctor of Philosophy of Cornell University. He has been the head of the Department of Philosophy in Bryn Mawr College since 1900. He was a careful scholar and an inspiring teacher, impressing his students with the clearness of his judgment, his devotion to his work and his honest conviction. His life and character have left a marked influence upon those among whom he worked.

Resolutions passed by the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS, God, in His wisdom, has removed from our midst our colleague, David Irons, Master of Arts of the University of St. Andrews, Doctor of Philosophy of Cornell University, and head of the Department of Philosophy in Bryn Mawr College since 1900:

Resolved, that we, the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College, desire to record our profound grief at the death of Doctor David Irons, Professor of Philosophy, our high appreciation of his scholarship and efficiency, and our recognition of those qualities of kindness, judgment, and honesty of conviction which endeared him to one and all of his colleagues; and further

Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to his relatives as an expression of sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolutions passed by the Alumnae Association of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS, the college has met with an irreparable loss in the death of Dr. Irons, Master of Arts of the University of St. Andrews, Professor of Philosophy at Bryn Mawr College since 1900:

Resolved, that the Alumnae Association desires to express to the Directors and Faculty its sincere sympathy and grateful acknowledgment of Dr. Irons' services; be it further

Resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the Secretary of the Board of Directors, and to the Secretary of the Faculty

Resolutions passed by the Graduate Club of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS, in the death of Professor David Irons, who since 1900 has been connected with the Department of Philosophy at Bryn Mawr, the college has suffered a manifold loss: be it

Resolved, that we, the Graduate Club of Bryn Mawr College, hereby offer to the Faculty our deep sympathy, and express our realisation of his high and noble qualities as a scholar and as a man, and in consideration of his helpful influence upon the college community, our sincere grief at his death; and be it

Resolved, that copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the Faculty and be inserted in the records of the Graduate Club.

Resolutions passed by the Undergraduate Association of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS, Professor David Irons, whose death has come upon us suddenly and has filled us with a sense of great loss, has held through the years that he has been here, our highest regard and affection as an inspiring teacher and a just and fearless man: be it

Resolved, that we, the Undergraduate Association, do hereby express to the Faculty our sorrow, our sympathy and our appreciation of the value of the untiring and entire devotion with which he gave his time and his interest to the service of Bryn Mawr College; and our realisation of our great privilege in having had the inspiration and influence of his character among us; and be it further

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College, and be inserted in the records of the association.

TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL REPORT.

To the Board of Directors of Bryn Mawr College:

The President of the College respectfully submits the following report for the twenty-third academic year of Bryn Mawr College, from October 1, 1907, to September 30, 1908.

The death of Mr. David Scull of Philadelphia occurred on November 22, 1907, in the seventy-second year of his age. He was one of the trustees of whom there are now only two left originally appointed by the Founder of the College. He was at the time of his death President of the Board of Trustees and President of the Board of Directors of Bryn Mawr College. For nearly a quarter of a century from its opening in 1885 until the day of his death he had been devoted to the interests of the college. He held successively, and often simultaneously, the most laborious offices in the gift of the trustees. He was Secretary of the Board of Trustees for eight years from 1885 to 1893, Chairman of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds for nineteen years from 1885 to 1904, Vice-President of the Board of Trustees from 1894 until his absence abroad in 1904, and President of the Board of Trustees, and also President of the Board of Directors, from his return in 1906 until his death. Every college building, except Taylor Hall and Merion Hall which were planned by the Founder of the College himself, was built under the supervision of David Scull as Chairman of the trustees' Committee on Buildings and Grounds. The harmonious arrangement and architectural beauty of Radnor, Denbigh, the Pembrokes, Rockefeller, and the Library are due in great part to his love of beauty and to his wisdom in following expert opinion. The liberal organisation and the sound scholarship of the college owe much to him. Bryn Mawr has been fortunate in the men who have served her on her board of trustees, and never more truly fortunate than in David Scull's service during the first twenty-three years of her life as a college. In the last appendix to this report will be found the memorial resolutions adopted by the Board of Trustees, the Board of Directors, the Faculty, and the Alumnæ Association.*

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees held December 6, 1907, Mr. Charles James Rhoads of Philadelphia, Third Vice-President and Treasurer of the Girard Trust Company, a son of our late beloved President Doctor James E. Rhoads, was elected a Trustee and Director of Bryn Mawr College to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Henry Tatnall, mentioned in my last report. Mr. Tatnall was elected a Trustee in 1894 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of President Rhoads, so that Mr. Rhoads now fills his father's seat in the Board. At the same meeting Mr. Thomas Raeburn White, a practising lawyer of Philadelphia, at present holding the office of Assistant City District Attorney, was elected a Trustee and Director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. David Scull.

Few changes in the faculty have occurred during the present year.

Mr. Robert Matteson Johnston who was appointed Associate Professor of History to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Professor Charles McLean Andrews mentioned in my last report has filled the position for one year. He was released by the directors from his engagement with the college in order that he might accept the appointment of Assistant Professor of Modern History at Harvard University. Dr. William Henry Allison, A.B., Harvard University, 1893, Ph.D., University of Chicago, 1905, Professor of History and Political Science, Franklin College, Indiana, 1905-08, Research Assistant of the Carnegie Institution, 1906-08, was appointed Associate in History to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Johnston's resignation.

Dr. Daniel Webster Ohern, Associate in Geology, was released by the directors from his engagement in order that he might accept a full professorship of geology at the University of Oklahoma. Mr. Chester A. Reeds, M.S., Yale University, 1907, Instructor in Mineralogy and Petrology in the University of Cincinnati, who has almost completed the work required for the doctor's degree at Yale University, was appointed Lecturer in Geology to fill the vacancy caused by Dr. Ohern's resignation.

Dr. Grace Mead Andrus de La^guña, Reader in Philosophy, resigned her position, and Mr. Asa Russell Gifford, A.B., Wesleyan University 1904, A.M., Yale University 1907, Assistant in Philosophy, Yale University, 1907-08, was appointed Reader in Philosophy to fill the vacancy. Mr. Gifford was highly recommended by Professor Charles Montague Bakewell, Professor of Philosophy in Yale University and a former member of the Bryn Mawr College Faculty, under whom Mr. Gifford had pursued his graduate studies in philosophy for two years.

Miss Isadore Gilbert Mudge, Ph.B., B.L.S., now away on leave of absence who has held the position of Librarian of the College for the past five years resigned her position on account of ill-health. Miss Mary Letitia Jones, Acting Librarian, was appointed in her stead. Miss Jones holds the degree of B.L. from the University of Nebraska, 1885, and B.L.S. from the New York State Library School, 1902. She has filled the following positions: Acting Librarian and Adjunct Professor of Bibliography, University of Nebraska, 1892-97, Librarian and Assistant Professor of Library Economy, University of Illinois, 1897, Classifier at the State University of Iowa, 1898, Second Assistant Librarian, Los Angeles Public Library, 1898-99, and Librarian, Los Angeles Public Library, 1900-05; Director of the Summer School of Library Methods at the University of California in the summer of 1907.

Miss Lucy Martin Donnelly, Lecturer in English, was promoted to be Associate Professor of English and granted leave of absence for the academic year 1908-09. Dr. M. Katherine Jackson, A.B. and A.M., Ohio Wesleyan University, and Ph.D., Columbia University, and Instructor in English Literature, Mount Holyoke College, 1905-08, was appointed Lecturer in English Literature for one year to conduct Miss Donnelly's work during her absence.

Dr. Caroline Louise Ransom, Associate in the History of Art and Classical Archæology, was granted leave of absence for the second semester of the academic year 1908-09 in order to attend the Archæological Congress to be held in Cairo in February, 1909. Miss Leila Clement Spaulding, A.M., Columbia University, 1901, and Instructor in Archæology at Vassar College, 1903-07, was appointed Lecturer in Art and Archæology to conduct Dr. Ransom's work during her absence.

Dr. Nettie Maria Stevens, Associate in Experimental Morphology, was granted leave of absence for the academic year 1908-09 in order to study abroad, and her courses were intermitted until her return.

Miss Katharine Fullerton who has filled the position of Reader in English at Bryn Mawr College for the past seven years was granted leave of absence for the academic year 1908-09. Dr. Lillie Deming Loshe, A.B., Bryn Mawr College and Ph.D., Columbia University, was appointed Reader in English for one year to conduct Miss Fullerton's work during her absence.

A full list of other changes and promotions in the faculty and staff of the college may be found in the first appendix to my report.

The most important problem now facing the college is the excess of expenditures over receipts caused by the steady rise of prices since 1902 which has greatly increased our expenses and materially diminished our receipts from the room-rent of our halls of residence and from various college industries in which the expenditure has been in the past nicely adjusted to the income. Our salary budget has steadily and inevitably risen from year to year notwithstanding the decrease in college income, the increase in salaries alone in the year covered by this report over those of the preceding year being nearly $11,000. The members of our faculty and staff, especially the junior members, can no longer live on the salaries formerly paid. It has become impossible to make new appointments of the same grade of excellence without offering much higher initial salaries than were necessary a few years ago. In our halls of residence it costs over $3,000 more a year than it cost in 1900 to furnish exactly the same table for the same number of students. During the current year it has become necessary to raise the wages of the maids in all our halls 50 cents a week, making an annual excess expenditure for wages of over $1,000. These are only a few instances of the general rise in prices which has affected almost every department of the college. From the opening of the college in 1885 until the year 1902, when the increase in the cost of living first began to be seriously felt, it proved possible by careful management to keep our annual expenditures within our annual income. In the year 1902 our accumulated surplus of income amounted to $49,287 which was used by the trustees to refund the endowment fund of the college for certain advances from principal made for the purpose of opening the college for students a year sooner than would otherwise have been possible. In the college years 1902-03 and 1903-04, the first years of the high prices, occurred our first income deficits, but in the second year our tuition fees were increased from $150 to $200 in order partially to cover the extra expenses. In the following three years we were able to avoid deficits, but in the year covered by my report we are again confronted by a very serious shortage of income, even although the price of students' table board has been increased by $25 for each student in order to equalise the actual receipts and expenditures for food.

The increase in the cost of provisions, labor, and materials has been so great within the past eight years that both men's and women's colleges have been reduced to sore straits. Their buildings can no longer be repaired or administered, their students can no longer be fed, their professors can no longer be secured and retained for the same expenditure as formerly. The experience of Bryn Mawr College is the same as that of all other colleges and universities of high standing. As long as present prices continue it seems to be wholly impossible to maintain our present standards of teaching and academic equipment and our present healthful physical conditions without accumulating constantly increasing deficits. Unless our private university foundations are to be generously and adequately endowed only two solutions seem possible. Either colleges must steadily deteriorate in efficiency and intellectual power, losing from year to year the ablest members of their faculties as well as their ablest students in order to live within their ever narrowing incomes, or the leading colleges of the country must agree with one another to charge their students in future what it costs to educate them. Higher education seems to be almost the only thing of great commercial, intellectual, and social value sold at less than its actual cost. As our colleges and professional schools are wholly unable to meet out of their endowments the difference between the cost of education and the amount paid for it they must unavoidably assume a mendicant attitude toward their wealthy graduates and patrons, and by flagrant underpayment compel their professors, however unwillingly, to contribute part of the salaries which they should receive in order to educate by charity students whose parents are abundantly able to pay for their education. It would surely be more honest to charge such students what it actually costs in order to be able to pay college professors living salaries which should attract into the highest of all professions well bred men and women of intellect and power, and use the income of our endowments for scholarships for poorer students and for additional academic equipment.

The method of meeting the present desperate financial situation adopted by many colleges for men by soliciting their wealthy graduates for contributions to make up annual deficits is not very satisfactory or self-respecting, nor can it be regarded as more than a temporary makeshift. Under no circumstances is it an expedient open to colleges for women. The graduates of women's colleges seldom have money in their own right and even if they are self-supporting they make very little more than enough for their own living expenses. These conditions in women's colleges will probably continue for a long time. In regard to endowment, colleges for women are in a very different position from colleges for men. They are one and all inadequately endowed. No one of them has a million dollars of invested endowment apart from moneys invested in land, dormitories, and other college buildings. Almost all the large fortunes of the country are in the hands of men, and very few men seem to realise the necessity of giving girls a thorough college education. Even wealthy women have as yet given very little to women's colleges. Indeed women give to men's education in memory of their husbands or sons larger amounts than men give to women's education. Men's colleges also receive large gifts from their rich alumni for endowment and buildings.

The great increase in the cost of educating college students is being met in so far as men's education is concerned by a corresponding increase of endowment. How are women's colleges to meet the similar condition with which they are confronted?

It is clear that unless the few people of wealth in the United States who care for women's college education endow it liberally, women's colleges will become less and less good. Parents in the east have begun to send their daughters to separate colleges for women, and there is, I think, every reason to believe that they will continue to send them, even if colleges for women deteriorate. And girls themselves wherever they have a choice seem to prefer separate colleges, and will probably continue to prefer them, even if they become less good than co-educational colleges or annexes. Unless something can be done soon to put our eastern colleges for women on a financial basis which will compare favorably with the endowment of the best eastern colleges for men, our eastern girls will soon again be receiving an inferior education as in the times of Emma Willard and Mary Lyon.

There is now a magnificent opportunity, such as has never existed before, for endowing women's education. The leading eastern colleges for women have been in operation as highly organised fully developed colleges for from thirty-five to twenty-five years. Throughout this time they have been well and economically administered at great personal sacrifice of time and money by their governing boards and faculties. Their endowments have been so meagre that one dollar has had to do the work of two. Their governing boards are experienced in the care of money, devoted to the cause of woman's education, and could be trusted to administer endowments to the best advantages. Colleges for women are the only educational institutions now in existence in the United States in which women themselves are studying the problems of education as they affect women. Deeply interested women alumnae are working on their governing boards, well trained enthusiastic women professors are teaching in all of them. Three of the five leading colleges for women, Bryn Mawr, Wellesley, and Mt. Holyoke are administered by women presidents and women deans and, though the other two colleges, Vassar, and Smith, have men presidents, the management of the students themselves and the details of administration are to a great extent in the hands of women.

If the governing boards and faculties of these five women's colleges with the experience they have gained in the past and the devotion they have proved themselves to possess for women's education could at this crisis in their history be given adequate funds, they could study the special problems presented by women's education, work them out practically, and reach a wise solution. It is essential that women, not men, should solve the problems of women's education. And women can do this only, I think, in colleges for women in which they are practically in control. In education as in most other things the most powerful influence is exerted from above downward. An adequate endowment of the best five colleges for women would probably do more than anything else to raise and improve all forms of college and school education for girls not only in this country but abroad where the education of girls is tending to be conducted on principles and methods worked out in America.

An additional endowment of two millions apiece would, I believe, enable these colleges to put their educational work on a thoroughly satisfactory basis, and to continue it on a higher level than at present for the next half century. Although an endowment of two millions added to their present endowment, which averages less than a half million apiece apart from lands and buildings, is small as compared to the endowment of men's colleges, it would be adequate to maintain excellent college departments without costly professional schools such as are attached to men's colleges.

There is only one professional school which should be maintained by every college for women, that is, a professional school for the training of teachers. Of all the graduates of Bryn Mawr 43 per cent are engaged in some paid occupation, and of these 60 per cent are teaching. In some of the other colleges for women the proportion of teachers is even larger. The experience of both men's and women's colleges proves that unless college graduates who expect to teach are given an opportunity to train themselves in the science of teaching in the colleges where they study the greater number of them do not get this training at all. The college women of to-day will be the most highly paid and progressive teachers of to-morrow. School teaching is practically in the hands of women. If we can train these women college students in the best educational methods we shall through them reform the teaching of boys and girls in primary and secondary schools. If two millions of dollars were added to the endowment of these five leading colleges for women, at least $500,000 ought, in my opinion, to be set aside by each college to maintain a professional school for teachers. In these five training schools women themselves could seriously study the problems of teaching in secondary schools and could train hundreds of young women teachers to put in practice the results obtained. A great advance in our present methods of teaching children would be the immediate result of such college training schools.

It would, it seems to me, be impossible for a great gift of ten millions of dollars to bring more far reaching and more enduring returns. Its influence would multiply itself from decade to decade a thousand fold. Women are the teachers of the race. They teach their own children in the home and the children of others in the schools. If the teachers of each generation can be well taught, the progress of the next generation is sure. If the endowments of even a few colleges for women could be made adequate to do this great work, the results of such a benefaction could scarcely be overestimated.

From what I have said it must be evident to everyone interested in the future of Bryn Mawr that the next few years must be spent in a determined effort to secure additional endowment for the college. The original plant of the college has been more than doubled by gifts for buildings and equipment in the six years since 1902, a new gymnasium is now being built, and a new infirmary is already promised as is explained later in my report. During this time, however, and indeed since the beginning of the college, not one dollar has been given for permanent endowment, with the exception of gifts and legacies to found scholarships amounting to about $40,000 which are not available for general college purposes. In 1900, the alumnae of the college realised the pressing need of more endowment and decided to endeavor to raise an endowment fund of $1,000,000. In spite of their generous and self-sacrificing efforts they have not yet succeeded in completing the first one hundred thousand dollars of this million. In December, 1907, the Board of Directors appointed a committee to consider the whole financial situation of the college and to co-operate with the alumnae. This committee consists of Mr. James Wood, Chairman of the Committee, Mr. Howard Comfort, Chairman of the Executive Committee, Mr. Alexander C. Wood, Chairman of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds, Mr. Asa S. Wing, Treasurer of the Board, and the President of the College.

The directors passed very few legislative measures during the year covered by my report.

The policy of electing two full professors in one subject was carefully considered, and it was decided that at the present time it was the sense of the Board that it was inexpedient for financial and other reasons to create two full professorships, or one full professorship and one junior professorship, in any single department of the college.

The Senate of the College consisting of all full professors who have been in the service of the college at least ten years was enlarged by the addition of Professors Bascom, Leuba, and DeHaan. The directors ruled that a year's leave of absence should be regarded for this purpose as a year of active service.

The Academic Council of the College, which deals with the qualifications for the degree of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy, was increased by the directors from twelve to fifteen members by the appointment of Associate Professor William B. Huff, Associate Professor Carleton F. Brown, and Dr. Karl D. Jessen, Associate in German Literature.

A year's leave of absence with an allowance for traveling expenses amounting to one-third of the regular salary was granted by the directors after seven years of service to a member of our staff who was not a member of the faculty. It was decided that this should form a precedent for the future.

So many requests for permission to be absent from commencement have been received by the directors during the year covered by my report, as well as in previous years, that it became clear to the Board that unless some rule of procedure were adopted our commencements would be held without the leading members of our faculty. The working year of Bryn Mawr College is at the present time shorter than that of any other college and our summer vacation is within one week of being four months in length. It is the sense of the Board that every member of the faculty and staff should be present at commencement.

The directors voted to assign more work to the Readers in English, and requested them not to accept in future engagements to teach or lecture in preparatory schools. They also voted to increase the present salary of each English Reader by $300 a year.

The directors passed several resolutions affecting the student body. The rule to the effect that a student who has not received the grade of merit in as many as one-half the number of hours she has taken may not take part in college entertainments, or hold paying positions in connection with the college or executive offices in the Students' Association for Self-Government, the Undergraduate Association, the Christian Union, the League for the Service of Christ, the Lantern, or the Students' Building Committee was interpreted to include the executive officers of the Athletic Association, the captains of the athletic teams, the officers of students' clubs or associations whose duties include executive work, and also the officers of Tipyn o' Bob, the magazine published monthly by the students. It is essential that students who are deficient in their academic work should be protected as far as possible from outside engagements.

The charge of five dollars already imposed on students taking special advanced standing, deferred, or conditioned examinations was extended to include examinations deferred on account of illness, or deferred, or forfeited as punishment by the faculty. The Board has adopted the principle that all papers that must be made out separately by the professors should be paid for by the students who make this necessary. By vote of the directors, these fines will be added to the annual appropriation for books.

It was voted by the faculty on December 11, 1907, that the committee for the supervision of examinations should be empowered to call into conference if it so desire representatives of preparatory schools to discuss previous entrance examination papers, and should also be empowered to invite to conference the members of the faculty who have set the papers in question. This is an important step taken by the faculty, and will in all probability mean in the future closer co-operation between our examiners and the teachers in the schools that prepare their pupils for entrance to the college.

The faculty considered during the year the abuses which had grown up under the auditor system, which has been in operation since the opening of the college, and on December 16, 1907, passed the following rule: "undergraduate students may become auditors, (1) by permission of the office in any course when unable to do full work in that course on account of ill health; (2) by special permission of the faculty, except in courses specified by the instructors to the office as not open to auditors, when the necessary time has been gained by advanced standing credits; (3) by the application of the rule concerning extended absence from classes; (4) at the discretion of the Petition Committee in cases of students on probation under the merit law."

As a result of a conference between the Academic Committee of the Alumnae Association of the College, the President of the College, and two members of the faculty, the faculty voted on May 6, 1908, to permit the Readers in German and French to hold an informal oral examination for sophomores and juniors in the oral reading recommended by the faculty to be done during the preceding summer as a preparation for the senior orals in German and French; and the faculty further voted that only those students who had voluntarily submitted themselves to these informal oral examinations should be admitted to the first oral examination held by the faculty in November of their senior year.

In consequence of the expulsion of an undergraduate student in the preceding year on account of having forged the signature of a member of the faculty in her course book, the faculty voted on May 6, 1908, that at the end of each semester each course book should be signed for attendance with the instructor's full signature.

The new schedule of entrance examinations, extending the time of examinations from five to eight days, adopted by the faculty and approved by the directors in the preceding year, went into operation in the spring of 1908 and was so seriously criticised by the preparatory schools that the faculty was compelled to reconsider its action and announce that a six days' schedule would be arranged for the examination to be held in the spring of 1908-09. The objections made were that the earlier date of beginning the examinations interfered with the commencements of the schools and that it was impossible for pupils taking the examinations to arrange to give up eight days to them, especially as this often necessitated their spending eight instead of five or six days away from home in hotels or boarding houses.

It has been a cause of much concern to the scientific departments of physics, chemistry, geology, and biology that the number of students electing scientific groups seems to have been slowly but steadily decreasing during the past six years. As it is possible that a contributory cause may be the lack of punctuality in closing the laboratories at four o'clock and the confusion in regard to the closing hour on account of the extra half-hour of laboratory work on every other Wednesday, the six scientific professors who conduct laboratory work agreed, with the approval of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors, to close the laboratories every Wednesday at four o'clock instead of at half past four and to exercise great care in closing the laboratories promptly.

The Bryn Mawr Students' Association for Self-Government, at a meeting held April 24, 1907, voted the following amendments to the constitution of the Association, which were approved by the Directors of the College on May 17, 1907, in accordance with Article XI:

(1) Article V, Section II, 1, to read:

The officers and the other three members of the Executive Board shall be annually elected by ballot by the Association in the fortnight after the assignment of rooms, and shall enter upon their duties immediately at the conclusion of all the elections.

(2) To be added to Article VII, as Section III:

In cases where criminal charge might be necessary, the Executive Board shall, at their discretion, hand over the evidence to the President of the College for further action.

(3) Article VIII to read:

SECTION 1: There shall be a representative elected by each hall to act as Head Proctor and to be generally responsible to the Executive Board for the conduct of her hall.

SECTION 2: There shall be an Advisory Board composed of these representatives together with a representative of the non-resident students and of the graduate school. The duties of this Board shall be to advise with the Executive Board at the request of one or more members of the Executive Board.

SECTION 3: The Advisory Board shall be annually elected by ballot in the fortnight following the election of the officers and Executive Board, the term of office to be the following academic year.

As these changes were omitted from the last president's report and as it seems exceedingly desirable that they should be recorded I have thought it best to include them in this report.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held October 18, 1907, a communication was received from the Executive Committee of the Bryn Mawr Students' Association for Self-Government asking for an interpretation of clause 4 of the charter granted by the trustees of the college to the students for self-government. This clause reads as follows:—"If when a new matter arises, there is any doubt as to which of these three provinces of jurisdiction it belongs and who shall deal with it, the Executive Board of the Students' Association shall consult with the Dean before any action is taken by them." This interpretation was made necessary by the appointment of Miss Marion Reilly as Dean of the College. On November 15, 1907, the Board of Directors adopted the following resolution:—"Resolved, That, in the opinion of the Board of Directors of Bryn Mawr College, this order of procedure is entirely proper, but that, as the President is the head of the college, and as such is held responsible for its government and reputation, the Board of Directors expects that in all cases of sufficient importance arising under said clause 4, the President and Dean of the College shall consult together, and the Executive Board of the Bryn Mawr Students' Association for Self-Government shall consult with the President and Dean of the College as circumstances may require." This resolution was approved by the Executive Board of the Bryn Mawr Students' Association for Self-Government and was printed by them as an appendix to the charter in the edition of the Constitution and Resolutions of the Association which appeared in November, 1907.

On February 13, 1908, the Students' Self-Government Association voted to abolish cheering in the dining rooms of the college. The noise in the dining rooms has always been a serious problem, and the noise and disturbance made by the student body in cheering athletic teams, alumnae who return to dine in hall, and other persons has subjected the college to serious outside criticism. According to popular tradition, cheering was introduced into the college by the Class of 1897 in its freshman year. On March 17, 1897, the President of the College called the attention of the Executive Board of the Students' Self-Government Association to the abuse of cheering and in consequence proctors were appointed at each table to control cheering and other disturbances. Between 1899 and 1901 this rule was changed and permission to cheer was given only by a member of the Executive Board of the Self-Government Association. On November 21, 1902, the first self-government rule on the subject was made limiting cheering in the larger halls of residence to ten minutes after the dining room doors were closed. Stricter regulations were made by the Executive Board of the Association in 1906 after conferences with the President of the College, but these regulations were not obeyed by the undergraduate body. In November, 1907, the rules which had been disregarded were rescinded and the regulation of cheering placed in the hands of the students of each hall subject to the approval of the Executive Board of the Self-Government Association. From that time until cheering was abolished the President and Dean of the College conferred several times with the Executive Board of the Association urging the Board to take action and the President of the College addressed the students on the subject in chapel. It is a matter of very great gratification that the student body voluntarily voted to abolish cheering in the dining rooms of the college because they were unwilling to continue a practice which was disliked and misunderstood by the parents and friends of the students and by many of the alumnae.

During the year covered by my report four students were required to leave the college. One graduate student and one undergraduate student were sent away by the President of the college in consultation with the physicians in charge; one undergraduate, a member of the senior class, was expelled for misconduct on recommendation of the Executive Board of the Students' Self-Government Association; and one undergraduate, a member of the junior class, was expelled on recommendation of the Senate of the College for handing in an essay which was not her own.

Miss Helen Strong Hoyt who resigned her position as Reader in English in June, 1907, after having been connected with the English department of the college for nine years, offered the Directors $1,000 to found the Mary Helen Ritchie Memorial Prize in memory of Mary Helen Ritchie. Miss Hoyt asked that the income of this $1,000 should be used to purchase a set of the works of Shakespeare each year to be given as a prize to the member of the graduating class who in the judgment of the committee of award during the four years of her college life had seemed most to keep alive the qualities of joyousness, fortitude, high courage, and faithfulness. This gift was gratefully accepted at the meeting of the Board of Directors held April 17, 1908, and it was voted by the directors that the committee for the award of this prize should be constituted as suggested by the donor and should consist of the President of the College, the Assistant to the President, the Dean of the College, the wardens of the halls of residence, the presidents of the three students' associations—Self-Government, Undergraduate, and Athletic—the Secretary of the College, and Associate Professor Lucy Martin Donnelly as long as she shall remain associated with the college, and after her death or resignation, of the teacher of the course in General English, provided this appointment should meet with the approval of the other members of the committee.

In my report of last year, pages 35-36, I called attention to the urgent need of a larger gymnasium. In the spring of 1908 a committee of the Students' Athletic Association consisting of Miss Marjorie Young, the President of the Athletic Association, Chairman, Miss Cynthia M. Wesson, the Outdoor Manager, and Miss Constance M. K. Applebee, the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics, called at my office to ask to have plans drawn for enlarging the gymnasium as the Athletic Association wished to begin to beg for the money necessary for this purpose. Messrs. Lockwood de Forest of New York and Winsor Soule of Boston were asked by the Committee on Buildings and Grounds to make plans for enlarging the gymnasium, but it was soon found that it was impossible to alter the old gymnasium so as to give the space needed by the students. Moreover the old gymnasium was built in 1884 of red brick in an architectural style out of accord with the later college buildings and was intended to be used by only one hundred students and was therefore totally inadequate, even when added to and extended, for the needs of over four hundred students. At the request of the Athletic Association a new building was designed by the architects in the collegiate gothic style of the other buildings of native gray stone with Indiana limestone trimmings.

Estimates were obtained and it was found that it would cost $34,000 to build, light, and heat a gymnasium according to the architects' plans. Toward the end of May the committee of the Students' Athletic Association informed the President of the College that they had already obtained $21,000 and appealed to her to help them to obtain the remaining $13,000 needed. Thirteen subscriptions of $1,000 each were given to the President of the College by neighbors and friends in order to enable the students to complete the total amount of $34,000 as follows: Mr. John H. Converse, Mr. Samuel M. Vanclain, Mr. Justus C. Strawbridge, Mr. Charles E. Pugh, Mr. William L. Austin, Mr. Alba B. Johnson, the late Mr. James W. Paul, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Potts, Doctor John P. Munn for Miss Aristine P. Munn of the Class of 1909, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Henszey, Mr. Joseph N. Pew, Mr. Justus C.

Strawbridge (a second subscription); and Mr. Henry H. Collins. Later the Class of 1912 subscribed an additional $800 in order that leaded glass might be substituted for plate glass in the great windows. The total cost of the gymnasium when completed will therefore be $34,800.* The dimensions of the main exercising room will be 90 feet by 50 feet by 22 feet which is large enough for a gymnastic class of one hundred students and the winter games of indoor tennis and basket-ball. In order to conform to modern requirements the new running track will be six feet in width instead of four feet as formerly. The swimming tank will be preserved from the former building and will be adequately lighted by windows along its entire length. Cloak-rooms and waiting-rooms of ample size are provided. A double staircase will ascend through the tower to a roof garden over the main gymnasium, 90 feet by 50 feet, which may be used for class suppers and other purposes. There will be a number of exits in case of fire. In addition to a large entrance hall and stairway, double doors will open at the rear of the main room on the back road; iron stairways will connect the running track and main room with the basement where there will be another large doorway. The stairway hall outside the running track will open through two doors on the low roofs on either side of the entrance tower.

The contract for the new gymnasium was signed on August 10, 1908, and the contractors immediately began to tear down the old building. The new gymnasium will be completed and ready for use in February, 1909.

Of the $21,000 raised by the Athletic Association, $15,000 was subscribed by the four undergraduate classes and their friends and $6,000 by the alumnae of the college. There was one subscription of $10,000, one of $5,000, one of $200, one of $125, six subscriptions of $100, six subscriptions of sums varying between $50 and $100, fourteen subscriptions of $50 each, seven subscriptions of sums varying between $50 and $25, nine of $25, one of $23, seven subscriptions of $20, two of $16, twenty-four subscriptions of $15, twenty-four subscriptions of $10, forty-four subscriptions of $5, three of $4, six of $3, and many smaller subscriptions.

* This amount was increased to $38,164 by necessary expenditures and the additional amount, $3,364, was given by Miss Cynthia Maria Wesson, of the class of 1909. Miss Wesson also gave $7,293 in order to tile the swimming pool and the swimming pool room and to introduce indirect instead of direct radiation. Mr. Alexander C. Wood and Mr. Asa S. Wing, of the Board of Directors, also contributed $150 each to the cost of the changes in heating, and the Students' Athletic Association gave $170 for cementing the basement, $128 for the trophy room, and $20 for rubber matting and painting.

This is the first time that so large a gift has been made to the college by the undergraduates. Our sincere thanks are due to the Students' Athletic Association and especially to their begging committee for the enthusiasm and energy which they have shown in originating, planning, and successfully carrying through this large and difficult undertaking. The new gymnasium will be a great addition to the college.

During the year covered by my report the Board of Directors requested the Directors of the Alumnae Association to advance them from the money already raised by the alumnae for the endowment fund of the college as a loan the sum of $16,000 in order that in the summer of 1908 the Committee on Buildings and Grounds might add to and alter Tan-y-Bryn, one of the faculty houses on College Hill which was too large for one professor, so that it might be subdivided into two houses to be occupied by Professor Lucien Foulet and Professor Carleton F. Brown, and also build a house on the campus for the Dean of the College. It was estimated that the alteration of Tan-y-Bryn would cost $6,000, and that the annual rental of the two houses would amount to $960 instead of $550 as before, so that the $410 additional would pay interest on the loan and meet the cost of the annual repairs, and that the Dean's house would cost $10,000.

Before requesting the Alumnae Association to advance $16,000 of their gift for investment in houses for the faculty the Board carefully considered the whole question of building houses for members of the faculty and administrative staff, and the Committee on Buildings and Grounds made a careful examination of the interest received on money invested in faculty houses during the past twelve years and reported to the Board that the interest on the investment had averaged slightly over five per cent, thus comparing very favorably with other investments made by the Finance Committee. As a result of the investigation it was voted to inform the alumnæ directors that it is in the opinion of the directors highly desirable to build houses for the faculty and administrative staff in order that they may be able to live comfortably and under pleasant conditions on the salaries which they receive from the college, and that the experience of the Board in building and maintaining such houses has proved that it is possible to provide them for the faculty without lessening in any way the annual income of the college. The Board of Directors of the Alumnæ Association responded cordially to this request and expressed in their reply the same point of view. The united decision thus reached by the Board of Directors of Bryn Mawr College and the Board of Directors of the Alumnæ Association is very important, as I take it to mean that provided the necessary funds can be secured the directors will build houses for the faculty and staff as they are needed.

The directors granted a request from Professor Charlotte Angas Scott to be permitted to make additions and improvements to Gwynfa, the house rented by her from the college, at a cost not exceeding $2,000, $1,000 to be provided by the college, and $1,000 by Professor Scott herself with the understanding that the rent of Gwynfa should be increased by $100 a year in order to pay the interest on the additional cost and cover all possible losses. The $1,000 provided by the college was also advanced as a loan by the alumnæ directors from the endowment fund which they are raising for the college. Mr. George Archer of Baltimore was employed as architect of Tan-y-Bryn and Mr. Lockwood de Forest and Mr. Winsor Soule as the architects of the house of the Dean of the College. Professor Scott acted as her own architect.

The Alumnæ Association has therefore paid over to the Directors of the College for investment in faculty houses the sum of $17,000, as follows:—for the division of Tan-y-Bryn $6,000; for the house of the Dean of the College $10,000; for improvements and additions to Gwynfa $1,000. As it has been decided by the Alumnae Association that the first installment of the endowment fund of $1,000,000 shall be presented to the college as soon as the subscriptions have reached $100,000, and as this time is now near at hand, this loan really represents a permanent investment of part of the endowment fund.

In the spring of 1907 Miss Mary E. Garrett, a Director of the College, received permission from the directors to rebuild and enlarge the president's house, the Deanery, at her own expense, as a gift to the college, according to plans and specifications approved by the Board, in order to provide the necessary facilities for college entertaining and also to provide adequate offices and workingrooms for the President of the College. This subject was not mentioned in my last report because the rebuilding was not begun until October, 1907. The work was continued throughout the winter, spring and summer of 1908 and it was not until September 19, 1908, that it was possible to occupy the Deanery. As the work progressed much more extensive alterations and additions were made than at first contemplated because of the very unsatisfactory conditions found to exist in the original building. The house was originally one of three cottages on the property purchased by the Founder of the College, and had already been added to twice, the second time having been partially rebuilt. In view of the fact that these alterations and additions were made without expense to the college and were to become its property in the future, the Board voted not to increase the rent or the charge for lighting and heating the Deanery during the occupancy of the President of the College. The rebuilding of the Deanery afforded an opportunity to improve the grounds around it by terraces and an enclosed garden with two fountains. Mr. George Archer of Baltimore was employed as architect, and Mr. Lockwood de Forest was called in consultation in matters of artistic architectural details. Mr. de Forest also carried out the interior decoration. The garden was designed by Mr. John C. Olmsted, of the firm of Messrs. Olmsted & Olmsted of Brookline, Massachusetts.

In my last report I called attention to the almost unendurable conditions and overcrowding in the old gymnasium which will be entirely remedied in the new gymnasium. Similar conditions in the college infirmary which I also called attention to still continue to exist. This infirmary was originally built in 1887 for a small physical laboratory. It consisted of only one room, 48 feet by 25½ feet by 13 feet in height, without a basement. It has since been subdivided into two wards with two beds each, a small nurses' room, and a bathroom. We are wholly unable to care properly for students who are ill because of insufficient room. In one single week of last year there were two students with mumps cared for by a special nurse in one ward, two students with measles cared for by a special nurse in the other ward, one student in the Bryn Mawr Hospital, and one student taking a rest cure in a private hospital at Rosemont for each of whom we were paying $25 a week out of our infirmary fund; and in addition to these cases we were caring for in two separate halls of residence each with a special nurse two cases of threatened appendicitis, and were isolating, also with a special nurse in a third hall of residence, another student with tonsilitis. It was therefore a great gratification as well as a great relief to hear from a Committee of the Class of 1905 which called on the President of the College last June that the Class of 1905 had decided to raise $25,000 for a new infirmary as a gift to the college to celebrate their fifth class reunion. Plans for this infirmary are now being prepared by Mr. de Forest and Mr. Soule, and a site has been selected by the Committee on Buildings and Grounds on the lower part of the Cartref property with an entrance on the Gulph Road which combines everything needed for an infirmary site—a southern exposure with sun during the entire day in the wards, private rooms, and living rooms, wide views from all the windows, four sun terraces, perfect quiet, and convenient access from the campus.

If the Class of 1905 is successful in raising money for an infirmary it will be the largest gift ever given to the college by a single class. The Class of 1901 gave a fountain to the Library which cost $1,000, the Class of 1899 has raised $1,000 for a clock for the library reading room, the Class of 1893 has given the sum of $515.83 for the purchase of books for the English department, and the Class of 1902 has given $500 to the Library as a fund for books. It will mean a great deal for the future of the college when the separate classes return each year for their reunions bringing to their alma mater gifts of buildings, library and laboratory funds for the purchase of books and apparatus, and above all, endowments for class readerships, or class associations or even for class professorships, or endowment for general academic purposes. Gifts such as these which would mean only comparatively little self-denial on the part of each individual member of a class would be of untold value to the college and would enable it to continue its unique work for the higher education of women with far more than its present efficiency.

During the summer the ceiling of the large reading room of the library was decorated by Mr. Joseph A. Skelly according to the plans, and under the supervision of Mr. Lockwood de Forest. The suggestion of the design was taken by Mr. de Forest from a beam ceiling decorated with oriental patterns in gold and color in Messina, Sicily. It is modelled on the geometrical plaster or flat carved wood designs of the Jacobean gothic ceilings of the period of the library. The forty-two panels of the ceiling are of a deep red design on an Indian blue background. The work has been carried out on the principle of the frescoes of the sixteenth century in the hope that it may prove to have something of their permanency. All the beams and cross beams are decorated with a stencil on blue which forms the background, the metal leaf forming the ornament. About 100,000 leaves of metal leaf have been used to gild the beams. In time the metal will assume the rich tone of old gold. The effect is very beautiful and recalls the painted gothic ceilings, which were so much used in English architecture of the time, without being a copy of any known example. The directors accepted Mr. de Forest's contract price of $2,500 for this decoration, but as he was able to complete it for $2,133 he asked the directors to allow him to expend the surplus in recoloring the walls of the reading room to tone with the ceiling and refinishing the panelling and reading desks in a darker color so as to accord with the memorial teakwood screen, and if there still remained a surplus after completing these two pieces of work he requested permission to decorate the walls and ceiling of the entrance hall. These three pieces of decoration will be completed during the Christmas holidays. The $2,500 expended in completing the library decoration was made up of the unexpended balances of the subscriptions given for the library by the original donors and of an additional gift from the Alumnæ Association amounting to $485.54, being the surplus subscriptions received from alumnæ for the library building.

Very little other work on the buildings and grounds was done during the year, as every effort was made to keep down expenses.

A new office for the Business Manager was made on the first floor of Taylor Hall adjoining the front door by removing the comptroller's office to the room next to the bursar's office which has been used as a cloak room for the women of the faculty. The professors' interview room at the opposite end of the building which is rarely, if ever, used for purposes of consultation was subdivided into two large cloak rooms, one for the men, and one for the women of the faculty.

A bathroom was added to the suite of the Warden of Radnor Hall so as to make her suite similar to those of the other wardens, a student's single room being used for the purpose.

The Students' Building Committee leased Cartref for three years and put in two additional bathrooms at the cost of \$364.43. They also subdivided the two lower floors into two flats, and paid half the cost of papering the house. It will now form one of the three houses run by the Committee as the Students' Inn. The Committee also purchased for \$32,500 from the estate of the late Robert F. Kennedy the house known as Llanberis and about $1\frac{1}{4}$ acres of land, adjoining the two college houses Cartref and Dolgelley. This property has been rented by the college and later by the Committee for a number of years. The purchase is a very important one as it protects the college front. Llanberis and the college properties of Cartref and Dolgelley now form a continuous piece of land facing Pembroke Hall, stretching from the Gulph Road to Lombard Avenue.

During the year covered by my report the Commissioners of Lower Merion Township have compelled the college to connect all its buildings with the township sewer at a cost of $5,667.84 and to pay an annual sewer rental of $1,174.68. The President of the College and the Business Manager met the Commissioners twice and had repeated conferences with the township engineer in a fruitless attempt to have the order to connect rescinded, or, if this were impossible, the annual rental reduced. We were able to secure only a twenty per cent annual reduction on account of closing the halls of residence during the summer.

The directors approved of the suggestion of the Assistant to the President that the college catalogue should be published by the college in four parts, Part 1, Plans and Descriptions, Part 2, Register of Alumnæ and Former Students, Part 3, Graduate Courses, Part 4, Undergraduate and Graduate Courses, in order to secure the second class postal rates of one cent a pound. They appointed her the official publisher of the college publications.

The State Federation of Pennsylvania Women held a meeting in Taylor Hall on Wednesday afternoon, October 30, 1907, and were given tea in Pembroke Hall. About 500 ladies accepted the invitation of the college.

The Alumnæ Association of Bryn Mawr held its annual meeting at the college in February: After the meeting the Alumnae Association lunched at the Students' Inn on the invitation of the college.

The Transatlantic Society of Philadelphia gave a tea on the Bryn Mawr College campus on Saturday afternoon, May 16, 1908, to the International Peace and Arbitration Conference which was meeting in Philadelphia.

The Endowment Fund Committee of the Philadelphia Branch of the Alumnae Association gave a tea on the campus on Saturday afternoon, May 23, 1908.

The annual conferring of degrees took place on June 6th, the address being delivered by President Arthur T. Hadley, on "The Relation between College Education and General Culture." Eighty-one students received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Five students received the degree of Master of Arts; all having received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Bryn Mawr College in 1907. Four students were recommended for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

The attention of the directors is especially called to the full information in regard to the working of the college during the past year given in the appendices to this report. The appendices contain a list of reappointments and changes in the instructors and officers for the year 1908-09; a list of the fellowships and scholarships awarded for the year 1908-09; the names of candidates receiving degrees during the year; a list of the speakers who have addressed the college; a list of the college preachers during the year; the gifts made to the college during the year; the titles of the scientific publications of the faculty during the year; a tabular summary of the courses of instruction; and reports made to the President of the College by the Assistant to the President, the Dean of the College, the Appointment Secretary, the Librarian, the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics, the Attending Physician of the College, and the Visiting Physician of the College.

Respectfully submitted,

December 18, 1908.

M. CAREY THOMAS.

Report of the Assistant to the President.To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit to you a statistical report on the students of Bryn Mawr College for the academic year 1907-08, and also an account of the regulations of the directors and faculty which were administered through my office.

The entire number of students enrolled during the year was 420. There were seventy-two graduate students including fellows. The number of graduates was over 17 per cent of the whole number of students.

I. Comparative Table of Number of Graduate and Undergraduate Students from 1885 to 1908.

Year.	Graduate Students.	Undergraduate Students.	Total Number.
1885-86	8	36	44

Statistics of Graduate Students.

II. Geographical Distribution of Graduate Students.

The seventy-two graduate students enrolled during the year came from the following states and countries:

Pennsylvania	31	Alabama	1
Connecticut	3	California	1
Indiana	3	Kansas	1
Massachusetts	3	Maine	1
New Jersey	3	Mississippi	1
New York	3	North Carolina	1
Ohio	3	South Carolina	1
Wisconsin	3	Oklahoma	1
Maryland	2	Canada	4
Missouri	2		—
Nebraska	2		72
Rhode Island	2

These seventy-two graduate students may be classified as follows: four non-resident, holding European fellowships, three studying abroad while one has deferred the holding of the fellowship; eight resident fellows; twenty-four graduate scholars; six members of the college staff, and thirty graduate students holding no official appointment from the college. Forty-nine were resident and twenty-three non-resident.

III. Number of Years of Graduate Study.

- 35 in their first year of graduate study.
- 17 in their second year of graduate study.
- 3 in their third year of graduate study.
- 7 in their fourth year of graduate study.
- 3 in their fifth year of graduate study.
- 2 in their sixth year of graduate study.
- 4 in their eighth year of graduate study.

Statistics of Senior Class.

At Commencement, June, 1908, the degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred on 81 students, one of whom completed the requirements in February, 1908. Their courses may be analysed as follows:

99 students entered the college as freshmen in October, 1904. Of these 67, or 67.7 per cent, graduated after the regular four-year course.

The average age of the class graduating in June was 22 years and 6.6 months.

The median age of the class graduating in June was 22 years and 2 months.

From the following table it will be seen that the percentage of students entering with no conditions continues to rise.

X. Comparative Table of Percentage of Freshmen Entering Without Matriculation Conditions, October, 1890—October, 1907.

This table includes only those entering in October of each year and takes no account of conditions in punctuation and spelling. Up to 1897 the proportion of students entering free from conditions to all the entering students, including honorable dismissal students, was taken. After 1897 the students who entered on honorable dismissal were not counted in taking the percentage. It is therefore misleading to compare the two sets of percentages.

Action of the Merit Law.

On the result of the examinations held in January, 1908, one student was excluded from a degree. This student at the close of her Junior year in June, 1907, had received a grade below merit on 59 out of the 120 hours required for the degree. She was placed on probation under the rule requiring her to take five years for her degree, but she fell below the requirements for the degree in January, 1908.

One other Junior who was placed on probation in June, 1907, left college, having planned to stay only three years.

After the examinations at the end of the first semester two students, one having attended for six and the other for seven semesters, were placed on probation. Both these students left college in June, 1908.

After the examinations at the close of the second semester four students, all at the close of their Junior year, were placed on probation.

The students who remained on probation improved the quality of their work in a most marked degree, and four who had remained under the care of the Petition Committee for two years graduated in June, 1908.

Since the five-year merit rule first came into action for the class of 1907 twenty students have been placed on probation, four of these have graduated, eight have left college, three have been excluded from the degree, and five remain on probation.

Registration of Attendance on the First Day of Each Semester and Before and After Vacations.

Students are required to register eight times in the college year, as shown by the following table, and cases of failure to register are investigated by the office and reported to the Petition Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

ISABEL MADDISON,

Assistant to the President.

Report of the Dean of the College on Illness and Attendance on Lectures.

To the President: Madam,

The following summary is made from the illness cards which are filled out weekly by the students, endorsed by the Warden of the hall, and filed in the office of the Dean of the College. All excuses for non-attendance at lectures and deferred college papers are given from these records; therefore the illnesses tabulated represent only those illnesses which have prevented the students from performing their regular college work.

Registration of Illness.

Number of undergraduates included in this report, 344.

Number reporting illness, 150, or 43.6 per cent of whole.

Seventy-four students, or 21.5 per cent of whole, reported menstruation as cause for non-attendance at lectures. To these students the following excuses were given:

- One excuse on account of illness, 37 students.
- Two excuses on account of illness, 14 students.
- Three excuses on account of illness, 12 students.
- Four excuses on account of illness, 6 students.
- Five excuses on account of illness, 3 students.
- Seven excuses on account of illness, 2 students.

This summary, with the reports of the Attending Physician, the Visiting Physician, and the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics, completes the health report for the academic year. Out of 344 undergraduate students 217, or 63 per cent, required no excuses from exercise, 194, or 56 per cent, reported no illness excuses for college work.

Attention is called to the fact that in many cases the same students consulted both the Attending Physician and the Visiting Physician, so that there are many duplicates in their lists.

Registration of Attendance at Lectures.

The attendance of each student was registered as usual upon the attendance cards.

For the first semester out of 344 undergraduate students 12 were reported as having no cuts. The total number of cuts for the whole semester averaged 9.26 hours per student; the total number of unexcused cuts averaged 6.9 hours per student for the whole semester.

For the second semester out of 346 undergraduate students 3 were reported as having no cuts. The total number of cuts for the whole semester averaged 16.64 per student; the total number of unexcused cuts averaged 12.42 hours per student for the whole semester.

The discrepancy between the averages of the first and second semesters is due to the impossibility of keeping accurate class lists during the first few weeks of the first semester, when the students have not yet definitely registered their courses. In considering the rather high average of the second semester it is necessary to take into account the fact that a large number of students do not fill out excuse cards when they are detained from their lectures by a slight illness, and that they do not always make them out accurately for the whole period of illness. If allowance be made for these omissions the average of unexcused cuts falls well below ten hours a semester per student. This is the usual number allowed in colleges where a rule requiring regular attendance at lectures is in operation.

Respectfully submitted,

MARION REILLY,

Dean of the College.

Report of the Head Librarian.To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to present the following report of the work of the Library for the year ending September 30, 1908:

Accessions.

Number of volumes October 1, 1907 52,859

Number of volumes added:

By purchase 1,711

By binding 438

By exchange 8

By gift 358

By replacement 3

Christian Union 16

Unknown sources 6

Total 2,540

Volumes withdrawn 76

Net gain 2,464

Total volumes in library September 30,

1908 55,323

These accessions are divided by classes as follows:

General works 274

Religion 153

Social Science 450

Philology 157

Science 369

Useful Arts 36

Fine Arts 20

Literature 513

History 425

Not classed 4

Total 2,540

The accessions of the preceding year were 3,497 volumes, 957 more than the present year. However, the number of books added by purchase during the present year was 1,711, against 1,515 the year before, the difference between the two years being more than covered by the gifts, the David Irons collection and the Mary E. Stevens memorial library being included in the accessions of the year preceding, as well as the entire collection of the Christian Union Library.

A list of donors to the library with the names of the books presented is appended. This list does not include the books purchased from gifts of money, these gifts being noted in detail in Appendix VI.

The Kirk collection on Burgundian history is not included in the above statement, nor is the Edmunds collection, both deposited in the library, but not yet made a part of it. Mr. Edmunds has added to his collection during the year until it now numbers:

Bound volumes	297
Unbound volumes	213
Pamphlets (less than 50 pages)	128
Numbers of periodicals	105

Cataloguing.

Titles catalogued	2,458
Cards written	7,792
Seminary cards	67
Continuations	1,594

Naturally the accessions and cataloguing do not run parallel. For instance, the David Irons memorial collection added the preceding year was catalogued during the present year. Books bought from the special fund for Semitic literature have fallen within this year's cataloguing, notwithstanding the fact that the money for their purchase belongs in part to the receipts of the preceding year and in part to those of the year to follow.

The recataloguing of the year was confined to the class 300, Social Science, all of which was completed with the exception of the general works on the subject and the books on law.

Miss Goss, the head cataloguer, resigned September 1st, and Miss Baker took her place. Miss Bell, assistant cataloguer, resigned at the same time, and Miss Jennings has been appointed to the post, although she does not commence her work till next month.

In addition to the regular staff of head cataloguer and assistant, Miss Jennings has been employed five hours a day for eight months as a special cataloguer. We were fortunate, too, in securing the services of Miss Baker for the month of August, when she worked with Miss Goss.

The cataloguing staff for the year has numbered one less than it did in the previous year. When it is considered that that one is Miss Sears, the most experienced member of the staff the library has had for years, the work of the cataloguing department for the year compared most favorably with that of preceding years, being only 900 volumes and 2,500 cards less than in 1906-07.

Working continually under pressure it is no slight task to maintain the necessary standard of accuracy and thoroughness while cataloguing as rapidly as desired. As a rule books are not ordered until they are needed, and the department is constantly called upon to rush them to the shelves for immediate use. When it is considered that the cataloguing, never simple, this year included the David Irons collection, the entire Semitic purchase, and the large accessions in modern history besides the usual additions, the work of cataloguing deserves special commendation.

Circulation.

No record is preserved of books issued from departmental libraries, nor of books used in the halls of residence, nor of those taken from the reserved book room for use in the reading room. A record of books drawn from the main library for home use has been kept for two years, and is interesting chiefly for comparison. The figures are as follows:

	1906-07	1907-08
October	1,865	3,387
November	1,575	2,087
December	1,074	1,533
January	1,660	1,741
February	2,614	2,453
March	1,852	2,219
April	1,810	1,699
May	1,527	1,481
	<hr/>	<hr/>
Total	13,977	16,600

The loan desk for the past year has been in charge of Miss Dunn, who served as assistant the preceding year. Miss Dunn has been most conscientious in the discharge of her duties at this somewhat difficult post.

There has been a noticeable increase in the number of students working in the reading room, although no statistics are kept. The privilege of reserving desks from day to day has evidently been appreciated. Special attention has been called to the fact that students may have books of reference brought to the reading room for use. So far not many have availed themselves of the privilege. The reference work in the library sorely needs developing. The books are here, but no provision is made for assisting readers to use them. With the present library staff it is impossible to assign any one to this important work. The teaching staff of the college do much to assist students, but where classes are large little or no personal help is possible and it too often happens that students go through their entire college course, ignorant of the most ordinary reference books.

A modification of rules was made in June allowing professors, associate professors, and associates to take books from seminary libraries and bound periodicals from the stacks for periods not exceeding seven days.

Inventory.

The biennial inventory taken during the summer of 1907 was scarcely completed at the date of the last report of the librarian. During the year the list has been repeatedly checked with such success that it is more than possible other volumes will yet be located. It has seemed wise to consider lost and to withdraw from the records all books missing through two inventories. This, then, has been done up to 1905, and the figures given show the actual conditions.

As a revision of the report of a year ago I submit the following corrected statement.

Of the 71 volumes missing at the close of the inventory of 1905, 44 have since been found, leaving only 27 that have been lost for a period of three years or more. In addition, there were missing at the close of the inventory of 1907, 11 accessioned pamphlets, 10 maps, 32 volumes from the main and departmental libraries, and 39 volumes from the hall libraries, making in all 98 bound volumes, 11 accessioned pamphlets, and 10 maps which are still missing. The books may be grouped as follows:

American History	3.10

These small balances have all been closed out, as well as the regular funds for the year. The special funds, gifts and incomes from gifts, have been closed, with the exception of those for Latin and for English drama. Orders outstanding will clear these up early in the year. There is a balance of $147.17 on the Sale of Books Fund, which balance has been reserved for the binding of the British Museum Catalogue early in the coming year.

Building.

A few minor changes have been made in the arrangement of the Library. The magazine room proved inadequate and the room formerly used as a study room, through which readers passed to reach the magazines, has been set aside for the newspapers and the more popular magazines. The doors between the two rooms were removed, and they are now practically one room.

In the reading room the open wood fires have added much to its attractiveness and the open coal fires have made the seminary rooms in the north wing more cheerful.

In the stack room rubber strips have been laid on the main floor and rubber tips have been placed on the chairs, deadening the noise considerably. Curtains have been hung at the ends of aisles, to protect the books from the direct sunshine.

The decoration of the ceiling of the reading room has been completed.

A college book plate has been designed under the direction of the Library Committee and also a special book plate to acknowledge memorial gifts of books. This book plate has been pasted in the Professor David Irons memorial library and in the books purchased from the income of the gift of the class of 1902. These book plates are being pasted in all current accessions.

Hours of Opening.

As usual, the library has been open from 8 a. m. till 10 p. m. during term time, except on Sundays, when it was open from 2 to 10 p. m. During the Christmas holidays it was closed at 6 p. m., and on Sundays, Christmas Day, and New Year's Day all day. It was also closed on Thanksgiving Day. During the spring holiday it remained open as in term time, except that on Easter Sunday it was closed until evening.

During the summer vacation the closing hour, as in years past, was five o'clock, except on Saturdays, when it closed at noon. An order of the Library Committee directing that it close at six did not reach the librarian until the vacation was over.

Members of the regular staff of the library were in charge of all the desks until seven o'clock, after this hour student assistants have been employed. The reserved book room has been closed on Sundays, as usual, and on week-days the attendant at the loan desk has had charge of both desks from six till seven every evening.

General Administration.

Few changes have been made in the methods of administration. The appointment of a regular office assistant has been the only change on the staff. Miss Wagenhurst, who had been connected with the library for six years, during five of which she had charge of the loan desk, was appointed to this post. Her duties include most of the typewriting of the library, the checking and care of serials, the oversight of the seminary rooms, and the housekeeping of the building generally. She has been of great service to the acting librarian.

Following the advice of the head librarian, orders for foreign books have been placed quite generally with G. E. Stechert & Co., of New York, instead of with firms abroad, as was done formerly. Miss Mudge had not fully tested the plan, but a few tests during the year were quite convincing. In April the order for continuations was placed with the New York firm. The one gain is in promptness of delivery, this being due, not to negligence on the part of the foreign firms, but to the necessity of combining orders to save on transportation. This delay, added to the continual delays in the customs offices, proved a constant annoyance. No contract has of course been made with the New York importers, and we are quite free to buy in the open market whenever it seems advisable.

The departmental and hall libraries have been in charge of fellows of the college, under the supervision of Miss Wagen-hurst. There being no fellows in Geology and Biology, Dr. Bascom and Dr. Randolph very kindly took charge of their departmental libraries through the year.

The various changes in the staff have been noted in connection with the statements of work accomplished. It remains to record the resignation of the Head Librarian, Miss Isadore Gilbert Mudge, and the appointment of the acting librarian to the vacancy, which appointment took effect September 1st.

In closing, permit me again to commend the faithful assistance of the library staff, and to thank you for your cordial co-operation in carrying on the work through a particularly difficult year.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY L. JONES,
Librarian.

Report of the Director of Gymnastics and Athletics.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to make the following report on the work of the department of gymnastics and athletics for the year 1907-08.

Physical Examinations and Health.

Three hundred and nineteen students were examined in October, 1907, 313 students were re-examined in April, 1908.

Table showing the college average height, weight, strength, and lung capacity at these examinations.

College Average.	Height cm.	Weight kg.	Strength kg.	Lung Capacity c. c.
October, 1907	161.9	57.5	278	180

Pronation of feet43.....	Extreme cases given special exercises.
Varicose veins2.....	None.
Enlarged thyroid2.....	None.

150 students were examined by Dr. Everitt as to condition of heart and lungs, with the following results:

76 normal, authorised all forms of exercise.

29 normal, but general health required the more vigorous forms of athletics to be prohibited or allowed only under strict supervision.

18 had heart murmurs, of these:

1 allowed all forms of exercise, 10 moderate athletics with supervision, 7 moderate exercise only. The condition of six had improved since the previous examination, eight remained in the same condition, four received only one examination.

6 cases of rapid heart action. All allowed moderate athletics with supervision.

21 slight irregularity in the accentuation of heart sounds. 9 allowed all athletics, 10 allowed moderate athletics, 2 allowed moderate exercise only.

Oculist's Examination. (General report, detailed report sent to the office of the Dean of the College, general report only sent to Physical Director.)

88 students examined.

43 both eyes normal.

13 both eyes defective.

5 left eye defective, right eye normal.

5 both eyes almost normal.

14 abnormal.

217 students out of a total number of 344 had no illnesses and required no excuses from exercise.

Gymnasium Report.

Trial drills of Freshmen and drills for students not substituting athletics began the second week of November and were held daily. The regular classes began December 2nd, the weekly schedule including four fencing classes, five classic dancing classes, six light gymnastic classes, five heavy gymnastic classes.

120 students took fencing, 163 took classic dancing.

All the Sophomores and Freshmen were required to take one light and one heavy gymnastic class a week and in addition might take dancing or fencing. Freshmen not able to swim were required to take six swimming lessons during the gymnastic season.

A class in classic dancing was held weekly for the members of the graduate school; there was an average attendance of fourteen.

Fines.

Five students failed to register the required number of gymnasium drills, 3 students failed to have their physical appointment during the specified time, 10 students failed to register the required number of periods of exercise by the Saturday before Finals, 2 students were given a special excuse from their fines for unregistered drills.

The amount received from fines was as follows:

1 student4 drills$8.00
2 students1 drill each 4.00
3 studentsPhysical appointment 6.00
4 students1 period of exercise 4.00
1 student2 periods of exercise 2.00
2 students3 periods of exercise 6.00
2 students3½ periods of exercise 7.00
1 student4 periods of exercise 4.00
		————— $41.00

The following numbers of students were excused on the recommendation of the College Physician or of their home physician endorsed by the College Physician:

- January 17th—Swimming contest. Finals.
- February 10th—Track practice began.
- March 5th—Track meet. Preliminaries.
- March 12th—Track meet. Finals.
- March 27th—Fencing tournament.
- March 30th—Basket-ball practice began.
- May 4th—Basket-ball matches began.
- June 3rd—Basket-ball match vs. Alumnæ.

The Athletic Association paid $300 for draining and surfacing the lower athletic field, and also paid off a debt of $600 owed to President Thomas for money advanced for new fields.

A subscription was raised of $21,000 towards rebuilding the gymnasium.

Athletic Fields.—The lower field with cinder surface was very successfully used as a second hockey field during the autumn and in the spring was turned into four dirt tennis courts, thereby giving the Association eight good courts. Next year four more will be laid out on the lower field. The upper field was used for hockey and basket-ball and was in good condition.

Report of the Attending Physician.

To the President: Madam,

As a summary of the work done during the college year 1907-08 I make the following report:

Cases Treated.

MEDICAL:

General colds	20
Tonsilitis	11
Moderate influenza	11
Severe influenza with high temperature	8
Severe influenza with distinct cardiac symptoms	1
Pharyngitis	9
Bronchitis	1
Bronchiectasis	1
Laryngitis	1
Acute indigestion with cardiac syncope	1
Indigestion	2
Rash from indigestion	4
Bilious attacks	2
Intestinal colic	2
Catarrhal appendicitis (1 operative)	2

It will be noted that we have had three contagious diseases, measles, mumps, and chicken pox. This does not include tonsilitis, which I would now class with the contagious troubles.

The significant point to be made in my report is that on two different occasions we had three contagious diseases occurring at the same time, and that our accommodation in the remodelled and poorly equipped physical laboratory which now serves us as an infirmary, makes it impossible to isolate more than two types of contagion. I mention this as another proof of the crying necessity for reasonable facilities to care for so large a body of students.

It is a source of satisfaction that, despite these conditions, we have been able to prevent any general spread of the diseases, this being peculiarly true in the cases of measles, which have been scattered through the year and save in a single instance due to infection outside of the college.

I am particularly solicitous that the health examinations in the future shall prevent the admission of a student suffering from a chronic condition, as has been the case in the student suffering from bronchiectasis, who has been in the college during the three years of my service. Though feeling the deepest sympathy with this student in her earnest desire for the benefits of a higher education, I cannot feel it wise to make her one of the student body and thus impose upon the other students a cause of apprehension and perhaps danger.

The nurses employed during the past year have been very satisfactory, and have aided greatly in the preservation of the best degree of health among the students.

The case of operative appendicitis mentioned in the medical report was a student who suffered from an attack of catarrhal appendicitis. She made a complete recovery from the acute attack, returned to her home in Chicago, and was operated upon with the advice of her uncle and physician, Dr. H. B. Favill, who accepted the diagnosis, approved the treatment, and believed that safety for the future indicated removal of the source of trouble.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS F. BRANSON,
Attending Physician.

Report of the Visiting Physician of the College.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit the following report for the year 1907-08:

I. During the college year, October 2, 1907, to June 1, 1908, forty-six patients were cared for in the infirmary building. The total number of days' care amounted to 367. During the greater part of the year contagious cases were in isolation, making it necessary to care for other students to the number of twenty-six, either in their rooms or in other institutions. The number does not include the cases of minor menstrual disturbance.

The classification of Infirmary Cases is as follows:

Abrasions of knee	2
Adenitis	1
Appendicitis	2
Conjunctivitis	1
Contusion	1
Coryza	3
Cystitis	1
Dermatitis	2
Dermatitis venanata	1
Dysmenorrhœa	2
Exhaustion, general	2
Fracture of nose	1
Influenza	4
Iritis	1
Laceration of ligaments (knee)	1
Nervous exhaustion	2
Odontia	1
Parotiditis	4
Rheumatism	2
Rubeola	5
Shock, general	1
Sprain, ankle	1

Tonsillitis	3
Ulcer	2
Varicella	1
	<hr/>
Total	47

II. The report of my personal work in the office and dormitories is as follows:

Physical examinations	280
Number of students' visits to office	322
Number of visits to students confined to their rooms...	17
Vaccinations	81
	<hr/>
Total number of consultations	700

III. Tabulation of conditions treated.

MEDICAL AND SURGICAL:

Acne	1
Adenitis	3
Adenoma (mammary)	1
Allopecia	1
Anæmia	2
Angioneurotic œdema	1
Appendiceal colic	1
Bronchitis	6
Cardiac strain	2

Dermatitis	1
Epistaxis	1
Erythema	1
Flat foot	4
Indigestion, gastric	3
Indigestion, intestinal	2
Influenza	2
Insomnia	2
Iritis	1

Jaundice (catarrhal)	1
Laryngitis	9
Nervous exhaustion	13
Pharyngitis	5
Psoriasis	1
Rheumatism (muscular)	2
Sprain	3
Strain (muscular)	8
Synovitis	1
Tonsillitis	2
Tracheitis	3
Ulcer	1
Warts	2

GYNÆCOLOGICAL:

Displacement of the uterus	2
Menstrual Disorders:
Amenorrhœa	6
Dysmenorrhœa	2
Menorrhagia	4
Ovarian cyst	1

IV. Tabulation of students by classes (exclusive of physical examinations and vaccinations):

Graduates	22
Seniors	17
Juniors	14
Sophomores	30
Freshmen	27

Total110

V. The total number of visits paid by nurses to students in the various halls, and by students to the infirmary for surgical dressings, etc., was 1,159. This represents an amount of work which has been greatly increased by the lack of proper infirmary accommodations. The work of the nurses has been efficiently and cheerfully performed, notwithstanding ing the many difficulties and handicaps under which they labor.

No other need of the institution can be more urgent than that of a new infirmary. The defects and inadequacies of the present building do not bear enumeration.

Respectfully submitted,

ELLA B. EVERITT,
Visiting Physician.

XI.

Resolutions in Memory of David Scull, Trustee of Bryn Mawr College from 1880 to 1907, and Director of the College from 1906 to 1907.

Born, January 17, 1836. Died, November 22, 1907.

At an annual meeting of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College held December 6, 1907, the Chairman announced the death of David Scull, President of this body, and the following minute was unanimously adopted:—

“Information was now received of the death on November 22, 1907, at his home, at Overbrook, Philadelphia, in the seventy-second year of his age, of David Scull, President of this body.

“It is hardly possible adequately to set forth the loss to ourselves, to the College, and especially to its President. In the poet’s words:

What practice howsoe’er expert,
In fitting aptest words to things,
Or voice the richest toned that sings,
Hath power to give thee as thou wert?

“David Scull, for a time a student at Westtown Boarding School, graduated from Haverford College in 1854, and retired from a successful business life in 1891, although he continued to take part in the management of some business and financial corporations.

“He early became interested in the educational work of Friends, having been a Manager of Haverford College since 1865, Treasurer of the Corporation for many years, and a liberal contributor to its support. For nearly thirty years he was a member of the Corporation chartered by William Penn, having the William Penn Charter School under its care.

“Dr. Joseph W. Taylor, in his will, named David Scull one of the thirteen Friends who, with their successors, were to form the corporation, “The Trustees of Bryn Mawr College”, and on the organisation of this Corporation he was chosen its Secretary, which post he filled until May 10, 1895, when, being elected Vice-President, he resigned. He served as Vice-President until the Annual Meeting, December 2, 1904, and then retired on account of a prolonged visit to Europe. Upon his return, he was elected President, October 19, 1906. He also served as Chairman of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds for nineteen years, from 1885 to 1904, when he resigned prior to the visit to Europe, above mentioned. Of late years, ill health and much absence from home at times prevented his taking an active part in the management of the College, but neither ill health nor absence lessened his interest in it. It was always very near to his heart and its welfare one of his chief concerns.

"He was also connected with much charitable and philanthropic work, and, at one time, took an active part in political affairs in Philadelphia, as a member of the historic Committee of One Hundred.

"He was an Elder among friends, in the Monthly Meeting of Friends of Philadelphia for the Western District, and was a deeply convinced member of our Society, whose spiritual views of Christian truth appealed strongly to his mind and heart. But while a loyal member of his own Church, his spiritual interest and outlook were not confined within its limits. His sympathies were broad and catholic, and especially was he greatly concerned and exercised as to the movement and development of modern religious thought. He pondered much and wrote much on these themes:

He would not make his judgment blind,
He faced the spectres of the mind
And laid them.

"In social life, he was a delightful companion; one of those rare persons who attract to themselves the cordial friendship and admiration of all with whom they come in contact. To him belonged 'the grand old name of gentleman', by every gracious attribute which clusters around that good word. Manly and charming in personality, noble in countenance, gentle in spirit, courteous to every one, alert in mind, refined in taste, with a keen and subtle appreciation of what is best in everything, and strong with the strength which comes from a pure heart,—all this we can say of our friend. And to this charm of person, this grace of manner, this fine humour, this crowning favour, of the indwelling of God's Holy Spirit, there was added that final test of a noble soul—utter unconsciousness of self.

"Truly, it was his desire to be among us as one that serveth. His eye fastened upon the Great Pattern, his soul fixed upon the King in His beauty, that which others saw in him, he did not see. His concern about himself was that he might be a humble, faithful follower of his Lord and Master, Jesus Christ, his Saviour.

"The blessing which he coveted, we may reverently believe to be his: 'Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.'

"In thinking of such men, we are reminded of that Scripture: 'And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever.' "

*Minute Adopted by the Board of Directors of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College at a Stated Meeting held

"In the list of officers and directors of the Corporation, just minuted, one honoured and beloved name is missing.

"David Scull died on November 22, 1907, at his home, at Overbrook, Philadelphia, in the seventy-second year of his age. He was a member of the Corporation, having been one of the thirteen Trustees named by Dr. Taylor in his will. He was the first Secretary of the Corporation and Board of Directors, serving until May 10, 1895, when, being elected Vice-President, he resigned. He served as Vice-President until the annual meeting, December 2, 1904, and then retired on account of a long visit to Europe. Upon his return he was elected President, October 19, 1906. He also served as Chairman of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds for nineteen years, from 1885 to 1904, when he resigned, prior to the visit to Europe, above mentioned.

"We will not enter into eulogy. His memory is secure in the hearts of all who knew him. We have lost a dear friend and colleague, and the College an earnest and constant supporter, while its President has met the double loss, either so hard to bear, of a beloved and faithful, life-long friend, and of a Trustee devotedly helpful to her in her College work.

"Absence from home prevented him from taking part in procuring the amendments to our Charter, enlarging the Board of Directors and providing for alumnae representation upon it, but he was fully advised of the movement, which had his entire and hearty approval. It is grateful to recall that he was able to be present at the meetings of the enlarged Board, and to extend a cordial, personal welcome to each of the new members.

“May the mantle of his spirit cover us in all our deliberations. So, will it be well for us, and for the College whose interests and welfare we have in charge.”

Resolutions passed by the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College has learned with sincere sorrow of the death on the twenty-second of November, 1907, of DAVID SCULL, one of the original Trustees appointed by the Founder of the College in his will in 1877, and actively engaged in the service of the College from its incorporation in 1880 until the time of his death:

Resolved, That we, the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College, desire to record our appreciation of his self-sacrificing devotion to our welfare and our gratitude for the wisdom, care, and insight with which he laboured for Bryn Mawr College during twenty-seven years.

Resolved further, That a copy of this resolution be sent to his family and to the Directors of Bryn Mawr College.

Resolutions passed by the Alumnae Association of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS the College has suffered a great loss by the death on November 22, 1907, of DAVID SCULL, one of the original Trustees appointed by the Founder of the College and for twenty-seven years an untiring worker for its welfare.

Resolved, That we, the Alumnae Association of Bryn Mawr College, record our gratitude for the noble-hearted wisdom and clear-sighted integrity so long and generously devoted to our interests and our personal sense of loss and sorrow.

Resolved further, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Board of Directors of Bryn Mawr College.

104 students entered the college as Freshmen in October, 1905. Of these 59, or 56.7 per cent, graduated after the regular four year course.

* These students completed the work for the degree in February or March.

The average age of the class graduating in June was 22 years and 8 months.

The median age of the class graduating in June was 22 years and 6 months.

The average age of the class graduating in February and March was 25 years and 3 months.

The median age of the class graduating in February and March was 23 years and 11 months.

X. Comparative Table of Percentage of Freshmen Entering Without Matriculation Conditions, October, 1890—October, 1908.

This table includes only those entering in October of each year and takes no account of conditions in punctuation and spelling. Up to 1897 the proportion of students entering free from conditions to all the entering students, including honorable dismissal students, was taken. After 1897 the students who entered on honorable dismissal were not counted in taking the percentage. It is therefore misleading to compare the two sets of percentages.

Action of the Merit Law.

In June, 1908, six students were on probation. Of these four did not return to college and of the two who remained one was in her second year of probation and graduated in June, 1909, the other was in her first year of probation, and expects to graduate in 1910.

In February, 1909, a member of the class of 1909 came under the action of the five-year rule, having a grade below merit in 56 hours and a grade of merit or over in 51 of the hours she had been examined on.

In June, 1909, four students of the class of 1910 came under the action of the five-year rule and were placed on probation. Two of these were not planning to take a degree and left college. The remaining two will endeavor to graduate in 1911. Hence four remain on probation, two in the class of 1910 and two in the class of 1911.

Since the rule came into action for the class of 1907 twenty-five students have been placed on probation; of these five have graduated, three have been excluded from the degree, thirteen have left college and four remain on probation.

Registration of Attendance on the First Day of Each Semester and Before and After Vacations.

Students are required to register eight times in the college year, as shown by the following table, in order to insure regular attendance before and after the vacations. Cases of failure to register are investigated by the office and reported to the Petition Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

ISABEL MADDISON,
Assistant to the President.

Report of the Dean of the College.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to present the following report for the academic year 1908-09. The office of the Dean of the College has now been in existence two years and the work of the past year has been more systematised than in the previous year and its scope more definitely defined. The work has been chiefly advisory in character and the students have come for consultation upon all matters pertaining to their college life. The registration of illness and attendance at lectures has been kept as usual from the records sent in weekly by the wardens of the halls and the members of the faculty.

Registration of Illness.

First semester:

Number of undergraduate students included in report,
325.

Number reporting illness, 106, or 32.6 per cent of whole.

Second semester:

Number of undergraduate students included in report,
324.

Number reporting illness, 122, or 37.3 per cent of whole.

The details of illnesses are given in the doctors' reports for the year. Although the actual number of illnesses has not been appreciably decreased the attendance of Dr. Everitt or Dr. Thomas at the college daily, except Sunday, has decreased the severity of the illnesses reported.

Registration of Attendance at Lectures.

First semester: The registration of attendance for the first semester included 325 undergraduate students. The total number of cuts for the whole semester averaged 10.89 hours per student; the total number of unexcused cuts averaged 8.22 hours per student.

Second semester: The registration of attendance for the second semester included 324 undergraduate students. The average of the total number of cuts for the whole semester was 12.29 hours per student, and of the unexcused cuts 7.64. These figures show a marked decrease in the average number of cuts from the second semester of 1907-08. There were, I think, fewer students in college in 1908-09 who cut excessively.

In addition to the regular college work of the office I have endeavored to keep in touch with the schools preparing students for the college. I visited a number of schools during the year and spoke before Miss Gleim's School in Pittsburgh and the Misses Shipley's School in Bryn Mawr.

Respectfully submitted,

MARION REILLY,

Dean of the College.

Report of the Appointment Secretary.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit the following report on the work of the Bureau of Appointments during the year 1908-09:

The following positions have been secured through the Appointment Bureau for the year 1909-10:

Report of the Head Librarian.To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to present the annual report of the work of the library for the year ending September 30, 1909.

The following table shows the additions made from various sources, and the total present extent of the library, with a statement of the condition of a year ago for purposes of comparison:

A list of donors to the library with titles of the books and pamphlets presented is appended. This list does not include books purchased from the gifts of money mentioned later under the financial statement. Nor are these included in the table of accessions under the head of Gifts and Exchanges since the actual buying of the books took place in the library. Of the gifts of books for the year the most notable has been a collection from Mr. Ingham which included several valuable books in philosophy and economics. The University of Pennsylvania completed the file of publications already in the library. The Hon. Irving P. Wanger, Member of Congress from this district, has responded repeatedly to special requests, and many public documents have been received directly from the Superintendent of Documents.

Gifts of money were received to the amount of $2,299.92. This has been spent with the exception of less than half the fund for books in German literature and philology, given by

*See footnote, page 30.

Mrs. Woerishoffer in memory of Mrs. Anna Ottendorfer, and the fund given by the Class of 1893 in memory of Madeline Vaughan Abbott Bushnell.

Miss Garrett's gifts for the year have been devoted to books in English literature of the Elizabethan period selected by Dr. Hatcher; books on administration for the president's office; the British Museum Catalogue of Printed Books with the Supplement, ninety-two volumes in all, and books in early English and catalogues of manuscripts selected by Professor Brown. To this last subject were devoted the gifts of Dean Reilly and Mr. Rosengarten, going far toward completing the file of these important catalogues.

The gift of the Class of 1893 is in the hands of Professor Donnelly, who selected books on English literature of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries while in England during last year. These books have not yet arrived.

The fund given by Miss Helen Lee Stevens for the purchase of books for the Latin Seminary was not spent in 1907-08. From the accumulated amount was purchased a valuable phototype reproduction of the Plautus Codex at Heidelberg.

Cataloguing.

	1908-09.	1907-08.
Titles catalogued	2,677	2,458
Cards written	9,305	7,792
Seminary cards	343	67
Continuations added	1,511	1,594

The accessions for the year have been catalogued to date promptly. The recataloguing has progressed somewhat irregularly. It has been the plan from the first to recatalogue such subjects as are being done in the Library of Congress, thus making use of as large a number as possible of the printed cards. The following classes have been completed during the year: 000, 039, 070, 099, 510, 539, 571, 573, 600, 629, 640, 699, 760, 799. In addition several long sets and continuations in other classes have been recatalogued as the printed cards were obtainable.

The work accomplished in this department has been most satisfactory. An increased amount of work with a smaller cataloguing force indicates growing effectiveness on the part of the general staff. The cataloguing force comprises the head cataloguer, the assistant cataloguer, and a student assistant who works two hours a day during the college year. But the entire library staff really contribute to the work of preparing books for the shelves, from the pasting to the labeling, and filing of the cards. We have been particularly fortunate in retaining in the library the young women whose main work is the care of the loan desk and the reserve book room. In addition to their regular duties they both assist in the cataloguing by copying cards, transcribing call numbers to the backs of cards, and filing cards, thus contributing to the permanent records of the library.

A gratifying increase in the books taken from the main stack room is indicated in the above statement. No figures are kept of Reading Room use of books, nor of use in departmental or seminary libraries. There is no falling off in the Reading Room use of books. The increase may be at the expense of the halls. Students prefer to do their work in the Reading Room rather than in their own rooms, which means that the reserved book room collection is drawn upon in preference to the hall libraries. It is impossible to state to what extent this takes place, as no statistics are kept.

During the first semester students were permitted to reserve desks for their own use, a privilege which did not work out practically. After the mid-year examinations reserves were allowed for limited periods only during the preparation of papers. This modification has proved more satisfactory.

The Building.

Toward the close of the summer, too late to note the effect on the general working of the library, certain changes in rooms were made as follows:

The office of the Dean of the college was moved to Taylor Hall. In the room vacated was placed the Christian Union Library. The former Christian Union Library was occupied by the cataloguing department. In the former cataloguing room were placed the reference books heretofore in the stack room. So far as the library was concerned these changes were brought about to make room for the reference books which have formerly been most inadequately shelved. No special tables were provided for their use and in some instances the light was very imperfect. In the present room there is ample shelf space, table room, and excellent light, both natural and electric. It is expected that the change will result in an increased use of these important books. The dictionaries remain where they were, at the end of the stack nearer the Reference Room. This location will best serve all classes of readers. Reference books may still be taken to the Reading Room and seminaries when needed but the increased convenience in using them will greatly lessen this demand.

The cataloguing department across the hall from the Reference Room is farther removed from the catalogue and the stack than before, but it is hoped the greater convenience of access to the reference books will compensate for this.

Bibliographical books, used chiefly in selecting and ordering books, have been moved from their place in the stack to the Reference Room, where the facilities for consulting them are much greater. These changes left the office of the head librarian remote and inconveniently situated at the opposite end of the stack room, and at the opening of college an exchange was made with the Semitic Seminary. The general administration work of the library will undoubtedly be facilitated by this change, and it is hoped that the better lighting will prove an advantage to the Semitic Seminary.

An additional office for the English department being needed, a portion of the non-resident students' cloak room was partitioned off and a very attractive room was made available. A second office for the department of Psychology was also provided by placing a partial partition in one of the laboratories.

During the summer the books in the main library, the seminaries, and professors' offices were cleaned with the vacuum cleaner. This proved very satisfactory; not only was the dust removed from the books, but it was taken from the building, and the books suffered less than in the old way of cleaning by hand.

Inventory.

At the date of the last report there were still missing from the inventory of 1905, 27 volumes, two of which have since been found. Of the 32 volumes missing from the main library, the departmental library, and seminaries in the 1907 inventory, five have since been found. Of the 39 volumes missing from the hall libraries at the same time, 8 volumes have been found, and 11 replaced. These 71 volumes are still counted as missing, not lost, and have not yet been deducted from the total number of volumes in the library.

The biennial inventory of 1909 took place during the summer, and as a preliminary report 77 volumes are noted as missing. Many of these will undoubtedly be found during the year. When it is considered that very slight supervision is possible even of the books in the stacks, together with the fact that practically no books are withheld from the students, the loss is small. It is especially significant that from the thirteen seminary libraries, only 3 volumes, and from the halls only 26 volumes, are missing. The 77 missing volumes are as follows:

General Administration.

The staff has remained practically without change during the past year, the only changes occurring in the minor posts of errand girl and assistant in the Reserved Book Room. Miss Baker, the head cataloguer, first entered upon her duties two months preceding the period covered by this report. Miss Jennings, who had served the library during six years as special cataloguer, accepted a regular appointment as assistant cataloguer this year. Miss Wagenhurst, to recover from an illness, was granted a leave of absence from August 1st, her place being supplied by her sister, who had been connected with the library several years ago. Miss Dunn, at the loan desk, and Miss Blackburn, in the Reserved Book Room, continued their duties. Student assistants for the year, have been: Miss Mary Eleanor Bartholomew, Miss Elise Donaldson, Miss Mary Ethel Ladd, Miss Anita Uarda Boggs, Miss Ruth Anita Wade. With the exception of the last named, the same students had held these posts for two or three years each.

As noted before, such success as has attended the work of the year has been the result of the increased efficiency of the staff. With the added experience has come an understanding of the work and a sense of responsibility which cannot be too highly commended. The cordial coöperation of the faculty likewise warrants comment.

In closing permit me to thank you for your continued support and assistance in carrying on the library.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY L. JONES,

Librarian.

Report of the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics.

To the President, Madam:

I have the honor to make the following report on the work of the department of gymnastics and athletics during the year 1908-09.

Physical Examinations.

Three hundred and twenty students were examined in October, 1908, and of these nine were excused the full strength tests; three hundred and ten students were re-examined in April, 1909, and of these six were excused the full strength tests.

College averages from these examinations:

	Weight kg.	Height cm.	Expansion cm.		Strength kg.	Lung Capacity c. c.
			Chest	9th Rib
Sem. I . .	56.6	161.71	6.03	6.17	274.00	184

Medical Examinations.

Two hundred and ninety-eight students were examined by the college physicians as to the condition of the heart and lungs, with the following results:

Normal	266..	No restrictions in athletics or gymnastics.
Cardiac murmurs ...	13..	Gymnastic and athletic work regulated to suit condition.

Slight cardiac irregularity	15
General debility	3
Asthma	1

Gymnasium Report.

The new building was not opened until February 22nd, 1909, so that gymnastic classes were held during five weeks only of the college year. Before the building was ready for use, outdoor drills were held when the weather permitted, and small fencing classes were conducted in the basement of Rockefeller Hall.

The class of 1912 raised $800 for leaded glass windows for the new gymnasium.

An informal contest between the Freshmen and Sophomore classes took place on April 2nd, in marching tactics, barbells, Indian clubs and heavy apparatus. This was won by the class of 1911 by 59½ points out of a possible 70, as follows:

	1911. Points.	1912. Points.
Marching tactics	8	6
Indian clubs	8½	8½
Heavy apparatus	43	36

Fines.

Five students failed to keep their physical appointments within the specified time, one student failed to keep a subsequent appointment, eight students failed to register the required number of drills, twelve students failed to register the required number of periods of exercise. The fines were as follows:

Physical appointments	$12.00
Drills	48.00
Exercise	25.50
<hr/>
Total	$85.50

A new vaulting horse, a giant stride, and two pairs of rings were presented to the gymnasium. Eight ropes and new mattresses were purchased from the fines.

The college is to be congratulated on the absence of any of the so-called contagious diseases during the entire year. We may also note with satisfaction that only ten cases of tonsilitis and three of influenza appear on the list—an evidence that prompt isolation and disinfection are bearing good fruit.

The small number of casualties in a college of over four hundred athletic young women proves very conclusively the very careful selection of healthy and normal candidates.

It would be a great satisfaction and comfort to the medical staff to feel that a new infirmary was in the course of erection. Such happy and healthy conditions as have existed in the past year can scarcely be expected in a growing community so closely associated with the pleasures and engagements of a large city and in constant communication with it. Our facilities for managing contagion are very limited and I would urge upon your board prompt action in providing suitable accommodations.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS F. BRANSON,
Attending Physician.

Report of the Visiting Physician of the College.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit the following report for the year 1908-09:

I. During the college year, October, 1908, to June 1, 1909, twenty-four patients were cared for in the infirmary building. The total number of days' care amounted to one hundred and forty-seven, and the number of cases requiring isolation was fortunately considerably smaller than that of the previous year.

The classification of Infirmiry Cases is as follows:

Abrasions	2
Adenitis	1
Appendicitis	1
Appendicial colic	1
Conjunctivitis	1
Contusion	1
Coryza	3
Dermatitis venanata	1
Dysmenorrhea	1
Enteritis, catarrhal	1
Exhaustion, general	1
Influenza	3
Nervous exhaustion	2
Parotiditis	1
Rheumatism	1
Sprains	2
Tonsilitis	3
Varicella	1
<hr/>
Total	24

II. The report of the work in office and dormitories is as follows:

Physical examinations	362
Number of students' visits to office	271
Number of visits to students confined to their rooms or the infirmary	32
Vaccinations	78
<hr/>
Total number of consultations	743

III. Tabulation of conditions treated.

MEDICAL AND SURGICAL:

Acne	2
Adenitis	1
Allopecia	1
Anæmia	1
Appendicial colic	1
Bronchitis	4
Conjunctivitis	2
Contusions	3
Coryza	10
Flat foot	2
Indigestion, gastric	3
Indigestion, intestinal	1
Influenza	2
Insomnia	3
Laryngitis	3
Nervous exhaustion	6
Pharyngitis	4
Rheumatism, muscular	1
Sprain	2
Strain, muscular	2
Tonsilitis	3
Tracheitis	2

GYNAECOLOGICAL:

Displacement of the uterus	2
----------------------------------	---

Menstrual Disorders:

Amenorrhea	4
Dysmenorrhea	6
Menorrhagia	2

IV. Tabulation of students by classes (exclusive of physical examinations and vaccinations):

Graduates	20
Seniors	14
Juniors	16
Sophomores	29
Freshmen	30
Total	109

V. Comparatively few visits by nurses to students in their rooms were necessary during the year, owing to the fact that much nursing attention was given in the offices of the physicians in Merion Hall, these rooms being utilized somewhat as a dispensary for walking cases. The results were a marked saving of the nurses' time and labor, and increased efficiency of the service.

VI. The arrangement for daily consultation hours made possible by having an assistant physician apparently has been an advantage in the way of prevention. The opportunity to secure professional advice promptly seems to have resulted in arresting some cases of illness in their incipency, and the general health record of the college for the year is consequently better than the average. Another step in advance possible because of additional assistance in the department is the physical examination of all students at least once a year, and in many instances oftener. This plan enables the college to have more definite knowledge of the physical condition of any student throughout her course, and unhealthy processes are far less likely to develop undiscovered.

The continued use of the offices in Merion Hall has greatly facilitated the medical work, but the inadequacy of the infirmary still makes the care of bed cases a difficult problem.

In closing my seventh and last year of service as Visiting Physician to the College, I wish to express my appreciation of the cordial support and co-operation of all with whom I have been associated officially.

Respectfully submitted,

ELLA B. EVERITT,
Visiting Physician.

APPENDICES.

I.

Promotions, Reappointments, and Changes in the Academic and Administrative Staff for the Year 1909-10.

LUCIEN FOULET, Professor of French Literature, resigned to accept the Professorship of French Language and Literature in the University of California.

WILLIAM BASHFORD HUFF, PH.D., promoted to be Professor of Physics.

LUCY MARTIN DONNELLY, A.B., Associate Professor of English, returned after one year's leave of absence.

CLARENCE CARROLL CLARK, PH.D., reappointed Associate Professor of English.

KARL DETLEV JESSEN, PH.D., reappointed Associate Professor of German Literature.

TENNEY FRANK, PH.D., reappointed Associate Professor of Latin.

NETTIE MARIA STEVENS, PH.D., Associate in Experimental Morphology, returned after one year's leave of absence.

CAROLINE LOUISE RANSOM, PH.D., Associate in the History of Art and the Classical Archaeology, returned after one semester's leave of absence and promoted to be Associate Professor of the History of Art and Classical Archaeology.

CHARLES CLARENCE WILLIAMSON, PH.D., reappointed Associate in Economics and Politics.

GEORGE SHANNON FORBES, PH.D., Associate in Chemistry, term expired.

HANS WEYHE, PH.D., reappointed Associate in Teutonic Philology and Sanskrit.

FREDERICK HUTTON GETMAN, PH.D., appointed Associate in Chemistry.

Dr. Getman was a student of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute from 1893 to 1896, of the University of Virginia from 1896 to 1897. He held a fellowship in Chemistry in Johns Hopkins University from 1902 to 1903, and a fellowship by courtesy from 1903 to 1904. He received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Johns Hopkins University in 1903, and was Carnegie Research Assistant in Physical Chemistry from 1903 to 1904. He was Lecturer in Physical Chemistry in the College of the City of New York from 1904 to 1905, and was Lecturer in Physics at Columbia University from 1907 to 1908.

M. PHILLIPS MASON, PH.D., appointed Associate in Philosophy. Dr. Mason graduated from Harvard University, taking the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1899, the degree of Master of Arts in 1900, and the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1904. He was a student of Corpus Christi College, University of Oxford, from 1899 to 1900; studied at the University of Heidelberg and Berlin from 1900 to 1901; at the University of Marburg from 1901 to 1902, at the Sorbonne and Collège de France in 1902, and at Harvard University from 1902 to 1904. He was Instructor in Philosophy at Princeton University from 1905 to 1907.

CLARENCE ERROL FERREE, PH.D., promoted to be Associate in Experimental Psychology.

MARION REILLY, A.B., reappointed Dean of the College and Reader in Philosophy.

ORIE LATHAM HATCHER, PH.D., reappointed Lecturer in Elizabethan Literature.

FREDERICK A. BLOSSOM, A.B., appointed Lecturer in French. Mr. Blossom received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Amherst College in 1898. He was a student of Romance Languages in Johns Hopkins University from 1903 to 1904; in Paris and Grenoble from 1905 to 1908 and again in Johns Hopkins University in 1909.

ROSE CHAMBERLIN, M.A., reappointed Reader in German.

HARRIET RANDOLPH, PH.D., reappointed Demonstrator in Biology and Reader in Botany.

KATHARINE FULLERTON, A.M., reappointed Reader in English, returned after one year's leave of absence.

REGINA KATHARINE CRANDALL, PH.D., reappointed Reader in English.

GEORGIANA GODDARD KING, A.M., reappointed Reader in English.

ABBY KIRK, A.B., reappointed Reader in Elementary Greek.

HELEN WARD, A.B., Reader in English, resigned.

MAUD DOWNING, A.B., reappointed Reader in Semitic Languages.

CLARA LEONORA NICOLAY, PH.D., reappointed Reader in Elementary French.

UNA McMAHAN, A.B., Reader and Demonstrator in the History of Art and Classical Archaeology, resigned.

LILY ROSS TAYLOR, A.B., Reader in Latin, resigned.

VIRGINIA RAGSDALE, PH.D., reappointed Reader in Mathematics.

LILLIE DEMING LOSHE, PH.D., reappointed Reader in English.

ASA RUSSELL GIFFORD, A.M., Reader in Philosophy, resigned.

CONTENT SHEPARD NICHOLS, A.M., appointed Reader in English. Miss Nichols received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Bryn Mawr College in 1899 and the degree of Master of Arts in 1900. She was a graduate scholar in Latin and English in Bryn Mawr College from 1899 to 1900 and Assistant Reader in English in Bryn Mawr College in 1900. She has since taught in the Bryn Mawr School in Baltimore and in the Baldwin School in Bryn Mawr and has acted as a private tutor.

ELIZABETH ANDROS FOSTER, A.M., appointed Reader in Latin. Miss Foster received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Bryn Mawr College in 1908 and the degree of Master of Arts in 1909; and was graduate scholar in Latin at Bryn Mawr College from 1908 to 1909.

FRANCES LOWATER, B.Sc., PH.D., reappointed Demonstrator in Physics.

GERTRUDE LANGDON HERITAGE, A.M., reappointed Demonstrator in Chemistry.

CAROLINE VINIA LYNCH, A.M., appointed Demonstrator in the History of Art and Classical Archaeology. Miss Lynch graduated from Smith College in 1894 and received the degree of Master of Arts from Columbia University in 1908. She studied at the American School of Classical Studies in Rome from 1904 to 1905, in Columbia University from 1906 to 1907, and in Radcliffe College from 1907 to 1909.

ANNA BELL LAWTHER, A.B., reappointed Secretary of the College.

ETHEL WALKER, A.M., reappointed Recording Secretary and Appointment Secretary.

MARY LETITIA JONES, B.L., B.L.S., reappointed Librarian.

Report of the Assistant to the President.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit to you a statistical report on the students of Bryn Mawr College for the academic year 1909-10, a statistical report of the workings of the regulations of the Directors and Faculty, and an account of matters which were administered through my office.

The entire number of students enrolled during the year was 425. There were 87 graduate students, including fellows. The number of graduates was over 20 per cent of the whole number of students.

XII. Comparative Table of Percentage of Freshmen Entering Without Matriculation Conditions, October, 1890—October, 1909.

This table includes only those entering in October of each year and takes no account of conditions in punctuation and spelling. Up to 1897 the proportion of students entering free from conditions to all the entering students, including honorable dismissal students, was taken. After 1897 the students who entered on honorable dismissal were not counted in taking the percentage. It is therefore misleading to compare the two sets of percentages.

XIII. Removal of Matriculation Conditions.

Omitting conditions in punctuation and spelling 93 conditions were incurred:

- 18 were passed off in November, 1909.
- 4 were passed off in February, 1910.
- 21 were passed off in March, 1910.
- 12 were passed off in May, 1910.
- 14 were passed off in September, 1910.

Twenty-four were not passed off before the beginning of the sophomore year. Six students with entrance conditions not passed off left college during or at the close of their freshman year.

Action of the Merit Law.

In the report for 1908-09 it was stated that in June, 1909, four students remained on probation, two in the Class of 1910 and two in the Class of 1911.

The two students in the Class of 1910 graduated in June, 1910, and the other two remain at college and expect to graduate in 1911. No students came under the action of the five year rule in 1909-10, and no students were excluded from the degree. Thirty-six freshmen, fourteen sophomores and one senior had more than half their hours under merit in June, 1910, and were prevented from taking part in any College entertainments requiring preparation, from serving as officers of any clubs or associations and from doing any remunerative work connected with the College.

Since the five year rule came into action for the Class of 1907, twenty-five students have been placed on probation; of these seven have graduated, three have been excluded from the degree, thirteen have left college and two remain on probation. Two hundred and ninety-one students have graduated in the four classes, 1907, 1908, 1909, and 1910. Thus about 1 per cent have been excluded from a degree and a little over 8 per cent have been placed on probation.

Registration of Attendance on the First Day of Each Semester and Before and After Vacations.

Students are required to register eight times in the college year, as shown by the following table, in order to insure regular attendance before and after the vacations. Cases of failure to register are investigated by the office and reported to the Petition Committee of the Faculty.

Fines.

Fines are imposed for failure to register courses in the appointed period and for failure to return course books to the office at the given time at the end of each semester.

In the first semester 8 students and in the second semester 13 students failed to register during the appointed period; these fines amounted to $105. Three students handed in their course books late; these fines amounted to $15. A fee of one dollar is charged for each change made in the course after it is definitely registered. Fifty-three students changed their courses and the fees amounted to $62. This money is used for the purchase of books for the library.

Assistant to the President.

Report of the Dean of the College.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to present the following report for the academic year, 1909-10. In September my office was moved from the Library to Taylor Hall. The new office is larger and more commodious than the old and the work has been greatly facilitated by the change. A slight change was made in the advisory divisions for the year. The Assistant to the President advised one-fourth of every class in college and I acted as adviser to the remaining 253 undergraduates. The registration of illness and attendance at lectures has been kept as usual in my office from records sent in weekly by the wardens of the halls and the members of the faculty.

The details of illnesses are given in the doctor's report for the year. Dr. Anne H. Thomas has been in her office in Merion Hall every day, except Sunday, from four to six.

The comparative freedom of the college from any epidemics was due, I think, to Dr. Thomas's daily office hour and the prompt attention given to all cases of illness by Miss Hartwig, the head nurse.

Report of the Secretary to the Faculty.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to report that during the academic year 1909-10 the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College has taken action in matters not of a routine character as follows:

December 20, 1909. Voted to adopt an alphabetical order of seating in classes having proctors.

Voted to revise the regulation concerning admission to collegiate courses so as not to exclude from courses in Science or in History, students having matriculation conditions in those subjects.

March 17, 1910. On recommendation of the committee to select candidates for the graduate European fellowships, voted that holders of the graduate scholarships for British and German women should not be eligible for the European fellowships.

April 2, 1910. Voted to permit Archaeology to be combined with Greek or Latin as a group.

After much discussion, voted to permit Comparative Literature, a course about to be established, to make a group with any modern language provided the department of the modern language in question assent to the combination.

April 28, 1910. On recommendation of a committee appointed to consider the question, the Faculty voted to make no change in the existing regulations as to eligibility for the two European fellowships open to graduates, as some had proposed, but to keep one of them for students in the first year of graduate study at Bryn Mawr College and the other for students of longer residence.

A recommendation of special conferences concerning the qualifications of prospective candidates for these fellowships was tabled.

A committee on the codification of quizzes, after long consideration of the problem, presented an extended report and proposed a scheme of systematized quizzes for trial during a period of two years. This scheme with a minor verbal change was adopted.

The Faculty instructed and authorized its Schedule Committee to re-arrange the examinations in Private Reading.

At the request of the department the Faculty approved the adoption of new requirements in Latin for admission according to the plan of the Classical Association.

May 20, 1910. Asked if it would accept a dissertation written in French the Faculty referred the question to the Council.

During the year the Faculty also held oral examinations for five candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (A. M. Boring, G. P. Reynolds, L. Dudley, H. H. Nichols, and E. S. Ogden).

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH W. WARREN,

Secretary to the Faculty.

Report of the Secretary.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to submit the following report of the work of the secretary's office during the year 1909-10.

The correspondence with the parents of prospective students, with the candidates themselves and with the teachers preparing candidates for the college was done in the secretary's office. Prospective students were advised to apply early for rooms and applications have been received for the next seven years and one for the year 1929.

Three hundred and sixty-five students were assigned rooms in the halls of residence. The quieter single rooms in all the halls except in Merion Hall are set apart for graduate students. One-fourth of all the other rooms are assigned to each class, so that in each hall one-fourth of the rooms are reserved for the entering class. All students have the privilege of retaining their rooms from year to year. The students who wish to change their rooms draw by classes for choice of rooms. All upper class students are assigned rooms for the following year before May 10th.

Total Number of Students in Residence.

	Merion.	Radnor.	Denbigh.	Pembroke East.	Pembroke West.	Rocke- feller.

Graduates.....	7	16	9	10	13	55
Total.....	45	47	65	67	64	77	365

The secretary's office is in charge of the distribution of all examination papers. Some of the college examination questions are typewritten and mimeographed in the secretary's office. Examination questions for the larger classes are printed, but all pass through the secretary's office.

The students register deferred and conditioned examinations at Easter and Thanksgiving and pay their examination fees to the secretary. The receipts from these examinations in 1909-10 were $1,387. Applications and fees for the matriculation examinations are sent to the secretary's office. The receipts from matriculation fees and matriculation pamphlets in 1909-10 were $2,660.22.

The matriculation examinations were held in the spring of 1910 in twenty-six cities as well as at Bryn Mawr College. In each centre the examinations were proctored by an alumna of the college.

Sixty candidates took the College Entrance Examination Board examinations and applied for admission to Bryn Mawr College in June, 1910.

Of the sixty-one schools that prepared candidates for the matriculation examinations in the spring of 1910, twenty-one were schools sending up candidates for the first time.

Report of the Head Librarian.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honor to present the annual report of the work of the library for the year ending September 30, 1910.

The following table shows the additions made from various sources, and the total present extent of the library, with a statement of the condition of a year ago for the purposes of comparison:

Accessions.

Number of volumes October 1, 1909..... 58,548

Number of volumes added:

	1908-09	1909-10

Net gain		195
Total volumes September 30, 1910.....		61,390
Total accessioned pamphlets		2,086
Total maps		1,979

* These numbers represent catalogued pamphlets only. There is also in the library a growing collection of several thousand pamphlets arranged alphabetically by author. Pamphlets when bound are withdrawn and again accessioned as books.

These accessions are distributed by classes as follows:

	1908-09	1909-10
General works	571	388
Philosophy	173	125
Religion	140	121
Social Science	505	423
Philology	125	143
Science	305	406
Useful Arts	33	41
Fine Arts	36	142
Literature	1,023	815
History, etc.	349	385
Total	3,260	2,989

A list of donors to the library with titles of the books and pamphlets presented is appended. This list does not include books purchased from the gifts of money mentioned later under the financial statement, nor are these included in the table of accessions under the head of Gifts and Exchanges, since the actual buying of the books took place through the library.

Cataloguing.

	1908-09	1909-10
Titles catalogued	2,677	2,126
Cards written	9,305	8,136
Seminary cards	343	414
Continuations, etc., added ..	1,511	1,195

The accessions for the year have been catalogued to date promptly. The recataloguing has progressed somewhat irregularly. It is our custom to recatalogue first such subjects as are being catalogued in the Library of Congress, thus making use of as large a number as possible of the printed cards. The following classes have been completed during the year: 839, 540, 570 and 580. In addition several long sets and continuations in other classes have been recatalogued as the printed cards were obtainable.

During the long vacation the entire Sauppe collection was replated. This involved the transfer of the call number from the old book plate to the body of the book, the removal where possible of the original plate and the pasting in of the new book plate and the special plate of this collection. This involved much trimming and fitting to the various sizes of books. The expenditure of time and care in the work was far in excess of the original plating of an equal number of books.

Binding.

During the past year one of the firms that had done much of our binding went out of business. After several trials we succeeded in finding another bindery which is able to do our binding to our satisfaction. The following indicates the amount of binding done during the past year:

Volumes sent 1908-09 and returned 1909-10..	418
Volumes sent and returned 1909-10.....	837
In binders' hands September 30, 1910.....	44
<hr/>
Total bound 1909-10.....	1,255
Total sent 1909-10.....	891
Total handled 1909-10.....	1,299

Circulation.

	1908-09	1909-10
October	3,688	3,872
November	2,238	1,866
December	1,873	1,343

April	1,862	2,278
May	1,486	1,695
<hr/>		<hr/>
Total	17,586	17,082

The rule governing the circulation of magazines was so modified by the Library Committee of the Board of Directors that members of the faculty are now permitted to take unbound periodicals from the magazine room for periods not exceeding three days.

Inter-Library Loans.

During the past year we have borrowed from other institutions 77 volumes as follows:

University of Chicago	2
Columbia University	5
Library of Congress	2
Harvard University	11
Library Company	17
Mercantile Library	3
Northwestern University	1
University of Pennsylvania	23
Princeton University	11
Protestant Episcopal Divinity School....	1
Yale University	1

Books have been lent to other institutions as follows:

Haverford College	2
University of Pennsylvania	5

Inventory.

No inventory was taken of the library this year, but a careful search for the books missing one year ago results in the following:

From the inventory of 1905 there are still missing 26 volumes; from the inventory of 1907, 18 volumes are still missing in the main library and 17 in the halls. At the close of the inventory of 1909, 78 volumes were reported missing. During the year four of the 30 volumes missing from the main library have been found and nine of the 26 missing from the halls, leaving 65 still not located. The total number of books missing from the library at the present date is then 109.

The Building.

The rearrangement of offices and rooms noted in my last report has been in effect during the past year, and has proved most satisfactory. The reference room has added materially to the library as its growing use continually indicates. The rearrangement of offices has likewise proved satisfactory.

The electric clock, installed in the library during the year, the ornamental bronze dial in the reading room, the master clock in the stack, and an additional clock in the reference room, have proved such a convenience that it is hoped the system may be extended to the magazine rooms and semi-nary libraries.

In this connection it may be not out of place to note the purchase of a small vacuum cleaner which has proved most satisfactory in the care of the building.

General Administration.

During the past year the staff has remained much the same as in former years. In December Miss Dunn resigned and Miss Blackburn was promoted to her post at the loan desk. September 1st Miss Blackburn resigned, and Mrs. Cassandra Warner is under appointment for the post for the coming year. Student assistants for the year have been: Miss Ladd, Miss Boggs, Miss Byrne, Miss Liddell and Miss Murray.

The fellows have taken care as usual of the hall and department libraries.

The librarian repeated the lectures on the use of the library to the students in the autumn. Especial effort has been made during the year to get into closer touch with the students. The new reference room has aided, but there still remains much to be desired. The students do not as yet make the fullest possible use of the library. The continued co-operation of faculty, library staff, and the students themselves has made the success of the year from the Librarian's point of view, and I am very glad to acknowledge my indebtedness to those whose continued assistance has proved of such value.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY L. JONES,
Librarian.

Report of the Director of Athletics and Gymnastics.

To the President, Madam:

I have the honor to make the following report on the work of gymnastics and athletics and of such work of the Health Department as has fallen within my province during the year 1909-10.

Health and Physical Examinations.

Three hundred and twenty-seven students were examined in October, 1909, of these twelve were excused the full strength tests; three hundred and nineteen students were re-examined in April, 1910, of these fourteen were excused the full strength tests.

College averages from these examinations:

	Weight kg.	Height cm.	Expansion cm.		Strength kg.	Lung Capacity. cu. in.

The report of office work shows the result of the closer coöperation of the medical and athletic departments of the college, made possible by daily consultation hours. Prompt reports of injury, and a more complete supervision of the general physical condition of the students are thus secured.

The very large number of mild cases of pharyngitis, coryza and allied conditions treated in the office during the year, together with the relatively small number of severe cases needing infirmary treatment, seems to show clearly that early care, prompt isolation and careful disinfection are of very definite value in preventing the spread of such conditions.

Should an epidemic at any time occur, we are still without adequate infirmary accommodations.

Respectfully submitted,

ANNE H. THOMAS,
Visiting Physician.

XI.

Resolutions in Memory of Professor J. Edmund Wright, Associate Professor of Mathematics in Bryn Mawr College.

Born, 1878. Died, February, 20, 1910.

Minute adopted by the Board of Directors of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College at a meeting held March 18, 1910:

Information was now received of the death, on the 20th of last month, of J. Edmund Wright, Associate Professor of Mathematics, after a brief illness, in the thirty-third year of his age, and the seventh year of his work as a teacher in Bryn Mawr College.

The Board of Directors wishes to place upon its records its sense of the great loss the College has sustained in his death, its recognition of his achievement and promise as a student and as a research worker in the field of higher mathematics, and its appreciation of his loyal and successful performance of his duties as a teacher during his association with the College.

Resolutions passed by the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS, our colleague, J. Edmund Wright, M.A., of Cambridge University, Associate Professor of Mathematics in Bryn Mawr College, has been removed by death:

Resolved, that we, the Faculty of Bryn Mawr College, desire to record our sense of the great loss that we have sustained in the death of Professor Wright, and our high appreciation of his intellectual power, of the extraordinary alertness and vitality of his mind, and of his widely recognised ability in research. We desire to record our conviction that in the early death of Professor Wright mathematical science has sustained a serious loss. Further, we desire to express our recognition of his keen interest in all problems of administration and of his constant endeavors towards the maintenance of lofty standards.

Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mrs. Wright as an expression of profound sympathy.

Resolutions passed by the Graduate Club of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS, in the death of J. Edmund Wright, Associate Professor of Mathematics at Bryn Mawr College, the College loses from its ranks one of its best known professors:

Be it resolved that the Graduate Club of Bryn Mawr College herewith express to Mrs. Wright, to the Faculty, and to Mr. James Wright and family, its heartfelt sympathy and its recognition of the great loss which it shares in common with them and the College at large.

And be it further resolved that the Graduate Club leave on record here its cordial appreciation of the work of Professor Wright during his residence in our midst.

Resolutions passed by the Undergraduate Association of Bryn Mawr College:

WHEREAS, the death of Professor J. Edmund Wright has filled the whole College with a realization of his brilliant promise as a scholar, and with a deep sense of grief at his loss. And

WHEREAS his death has moved especially his students, to whom he has endeared himself, and in whom he has inspired an increasing admiration for the transcendent power of his mind:

Resolved, that we, the Undergraduate Association, do hereby express to Mrs. Wright and to the Faculty our sympathy with their sorrow and our gratitude for his unwearied and effective service in behalf of the scholarly ideals of this college, and be it

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to Mrs. Wright, and to the Faculty, and be inserted in the records of the Association.

XV. Comparative Table of Percentage of Freshmen Entering Without Matriculation Conditions, October, 1890—October, 1910.

This table includes only those entering in October of each year and takes no account of conditions in punctuation and spelling. Up to 1897 the proportion of students entering free from conditions to all the entering students, including honorable dismissal students, was taken. After 1897 the students who entered on honorable dismissal were not counted in taking the percentage. It is therefore misleading to compare the two sets of percentages.

XVI. Removal of Matriculation Conditions.

Omitting conditions in punctuation and spelling, 84 conditions were incurred of which 46 were passed off during the college year as follows:

12 were passed off in November, 1910
3 were passed off in February, 1911
6 were passed off in April, 1911
9 were passed off in May, 1911
16 were passed off in September, 1911

Thirty-eight were not passed off before the beginning of the sophomore year. Nine students with entrance conditions not passed off left college during or at the close of their freshman year.

Working of the Merit Law.

Two students originally of the class of 1910 remained on probation during 1910-11 and graduated in June, 1911. No students were reported as coming under the five year rule in February, 1911. In June, 1911, one student of the class of 1912 received grades which gave her more than 60 hours below merit and was excluded from a degree. Five other students of the class of 1912 were placed on probation on the results of the spring examination and 2 of these have left the college.

Since the five year rule came into operation for the class of 1907, 30 students have been placed on probation; of these 9 have graduated, 3 have been excluded from a degree, 15 have left the college and 3 remain on probation. In the five classes, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911, 350 students have graduated. The number of students placed on probation forms nearly 9 per cent of these classes, about 4.5 per cent have probably left the college on account of being placed on probation, and about 1 per cent have been excluded from a degree.

In June, 1911, 33 freshmen and 17 sophomores had received examination grades below merit in more than half their hours. Of these, 29 freshmen and 10 sophomores have returned for the year 1911-12 and are consequently unable to take part in any college entertainments requiring preparation, to serve as officers of any clubs or associations or to hold paid college positions.

Registration of Attendance on the First Day of each Semester and Before and After Vacations.

Students are required under penalty of having some of their examinations deferred to register 8 times in the college year as shown by the following table; this registration is prescribed in order to ensure regular attendance before and after the vacations.

Fines.

Fines are imposed for failure to register courses in the appointed period, and for failure to return course books to the office fully signed at the required time at the end of each semester.

In the first semester 8 students and in the second semester 6 students did not register their courses during the appointed period and were fined $70. Course books were handed in late by 6 students who were fined $30. A fee of one dollar is charged for each change a student makes in her course after she has definitely registered it. Sixty-five students made such changes in their courses and were fined $85. The above fines amounting to $185 were expended for books for the college library.

REPORT OF THE DEAN OF THE COLLEGE.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honour to present the following report for the academic year 1910-11. A number of changes were made in the work of the office for the year. The tabulation of attendance at lectures and of cuts on account of illness was transferred from my office and done in the office of the Recording Secretary, and will be found in the report of the Recording Secretary. The work of the Bureau of Appointments which has in the past been done in connection with the Recording Secretary's office is now done in my office. I have this year advised all the undergraduates. The freshmen I saw by appointment once a month throughout the year with the exception of those students who carried their work so well that in the second semester they were excused from advisory appointments.

Under the new system of quizzes all students who wished to be excused from a quiz were required to file a record of illness in my office. This increased the reports of illness for the year very largely. The college has been very unfortunate this year in having a large number of mild cases of contagious diseases especially in the second semester. On account of three cases of scarlet fever in the infirmary the college was compelled to close on March 14th for ten days. This enforced vacation was substituted for the usual Easter vacation and the work of the semester was not seriously disturbed. I wish to mention particularly the cooperation and good will of both the faculty and students when they were subjected to great personal inconvenience by the sudden closing of the college.

The details of illnesses are given in the doctor's report for the year.

I have delivered addresses on educational topics before the following schools and associations:

The Jersey City High School, Jersey City; The Home and School League, Philadelphia; The Philomathean Society, Philadelphia; The Civic Club, Department of Education, Philadelphia.

Respectfully submitted,

MARION REILLY,

Dean of the College.

*This student was excused by her physician, Dr. John H. Musser.

REPORT OF THE BUREAU OF APPOINTMENTS.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honour to submit the following report on the work of the Bureau of Appointments for the academic year 1910-11. The following positions have been secured through the Appointment Bureau:

Teachers in private schools and in colleges.....	8
Tutors and temporary positions.....	13
<hr/>
Total number of positions secured.....	21

The above positions have been secured by members of the following classes:

“ “ 1905.....	1	Graduate students.....	2

“ “ 1907.....	1	<hr/>
“ “ 1908.....	4		21
“ “ 1909.....	2

A circular letter has been sent to each of the 156 applicants on the list asking her whether she now holds a position satisfactory to herself, or for any other reason does not wish her name kept on the files as immediately desiring a position. By this means the list of applicants has been further reduced to 44.

This report and the statistics brought down by Dean Reilly to June, 1911, I have completed by adding the candidates who obtained positions during the months June to September.

Respectfully submitted,

MARION EDWARDS PARK,
Acting Dean of the College.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COLLEGE.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honour to present the following report for the academic year 1910-11.

Three hundred and seventy-three students were assigned to rooms in the halls of residence, November 1, 1910.

The following table gives the number of resident and non-resident students and the number of students in each hall.

Number of Students, November first, 1910.

	Class of 1911.	Class of 1912.	Class of 1913.	Class of 1914.	Graduates.	Hearers.	Total.

Non-resident....	3	2	5	7	16	3	36
Total.....	61	69	92	115	69	3	409

A change in the plan of assigning rooms to undergraduates was made this year. Since 1898 one-fourth of the undergraduate rooms in each hall have been reserved for each class but the two upper classes are always so small in proportion to the sophomore and freshman classes that by this arrangement it is possible for the seniors and juniors to choose rooms in only five of the halls, thus leaving each year one hall with no seniors and often one hall also with no juniors.

Next year a fixed proportion of each class will be in each hall, the percentage being as follows:

	Percentage.		Percentage
Merion.....	15	Pembroke East.....	18
Radnor.....	14	Rockefeller.....	21
Denbigh.....	15		—
Pembroke West.....	17		100

The matriculation examinations were held in the spring of 1911 in 32 centres as well as at Bryn Mawr College. In each centre the examinations were proctored by an alumna appointed by the college.

The numbers of candidates in each centre were as follows:

Athens.....	4	Milwaukee.....	1

Fifty candidates took the College Entrance Examination Board examinations and applied for admission to Bryn Mawr College in June, 1911.

The applications for rooms for students planning to enter in the autumn of 1911 exceeded the applications for 1910 by thirty, showing that the halls of residence would be filled for the year 1911-12.

Respectfully submitted,

ANNA BELL LAWTHOR,
Secretary of the College.

The average number of cuts per student cutting is 31.5 per year or 15.7 per semester. As the regular number of lectures is 15 per week or 204 in the first and 207 in the second semester, that is 411 per year per student, a student who has taken 31.5 cuts per year has missed an average of a little over one lecture a week throughout the year.

Recording Secretary.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honour to present the annual report of the work of the library for the year ending September 30, 1911.

The following table shows the additions made from various sources, and the total present extent of the library, with a statement of the condition of a year ago for purposes of comparison:

Accessions.

Net gain.....	195	276
Total volumes, September 30, 1911.....		63,666
Total maps and charts.....		2,094
Total accessioned pamphlets.....		2,362

*These numbers represent catalogued pamphlets only. There is also in the library a growing collection of several thousand pamphlets arranged alphabetically by author. Pamphlets when bound are withdrawn and again accessioned as books.

These accessions are distributed by classes as follows:

	1909-10.	1910-11.
General works.....	388	134
Philosophy.....	125	169
Religion.....	121	193
Social Science.....	423	361

Literature.....	815	632
History, etc.....	385	253
Total.....	2,989	2,312

A list of donors to the library with titles of the books and pamphlets presented is appended. Books purchased from the gifts of money mentioned later in the financial statement are not included in this list or in the table of accessions under the head of Gifts and Exchanges, because all such books were bought through the library.

Cataloguing.

	1909-10.	1910-11.

Continuations, etc., added.....	1,195	1,226
Cards added to main catalogue.....	8,136	7,503
Cards added to departmental catalogues	414	576

The recataloguing of the following classes has been completed: 305-306, 342, 549, 560, 820.6, 849. This includes the greater part of the departmental libraries of botany, biology, and geology, and practically completes the recataloguing of the libraries in Dalton. The books in constitutional history and in Provençal and minor romance languages were finished. Several long and difficult sets in various classes, passed over in previous years, have been sought out and recatalogued. Among these are: Bombay Sanskrit series, 46 volumes; the publications of the following: Chaucer Society, 140 volumes; Early English Text Society, 246 volumes; and the New York State Education Department. All these sets were fully analyzed, and the addition to the catalogue was considerable.

As the cataloguing staff has remained the same during the year, the increased amount of work was made possible by the addition of a typewriter to the library equipment. Practically all cataloguing is now done either by the use of printed cards from the Library of Congress or by the typewriter. Subject reference cards, also many series cards, and cards bearing contents are being rewritten on the typewriter for the sake of the added clearness.

Heretofore, merely the call number of the book has been written on the book cards. For convenience in tracing books when out of the library a brief author and title entry is now being entered. New guide cards for the main catalogue are also being made; likewise a systematic revision of cards already filed is being carried on by the head cataloguer.

Binding.

Volumes at binderies, October 1, 1910.....	44
Volumes sent to B. S. Dougherty.....	674
Volumes sent to C. W. O'Connor.....	365

Total.....	17,082	16,085

The number of volumes taken from the main library remains practically the same from year to year; the increased use of the library appearing in the growing attendance in the reading room, and more especially in the reference room. During the past year for the first time the attendant at the loan desk has been trained in library methods and is able to assist in real reference work. This, with the increase in required reading felt in the reserved book room, marks a substantial growth in the use of the library which is not reducible to statistics, nor definite statements for comparison. The change in the location of the loan desk has added much to the facility of the work.

Of the 342 undergraduate students whose names appear in the Calendar, only 222 are registered in the library. Of the 69 resident graduate students, 56 are registered in the main library, though doubtless others are using the departmental libraries.

Inventory.

The biennial inventory should have been taken during the past summer. Owing to the difficulty of carrying on this exacting work without artificial light, it has been decided to postpone the inventory till the Christmas holidays, and to take it at this time thereafter, every two years as formerly.

General Administration.

The principal change in the library staff during the past year has been the appointment of Mrs. Cassandra Updegraff Warner to the post of assistant at the loan desk. Mrs. Warner is a graduate of the Library School of Drexel Institute; and for the first time this important post has had the advantage of a trained assistant in charge. The effect on the library generally is perceptible. With added facilities have come added calls and Mrs. Warner's time has been taxed to the utmost. As the library is still without a reference librarian, many of the inquiries that naturally would be made in the reference room are made at the loan desk. The faculty, as well as the students, are depending more and more upon help which the library should at all times be able to render, and it is with pleasure that I note that the present staff will not long be able to attend to these important demands.

Miss Wagenhurst, who has served the library for some ten years, was obliged to take a leave of absence in February because of ill health. Miss Josephine Jones, of the class of 1905, filled her place for the remainder of the college year, and from September 1st, Miss Marian Price, A.B., Vassar College, 1910, a graduate of the Library School of the Drexel Institute, 1911, has filled the post.

The student assistants for the year were Pauline Ida

Clarke, Laura Lawrenson Byrne, Agnes Elizabeth Morrow, Rebecca Renshaw Lewis, Elizabeth Henrietta Johnston, and Marion Dorothea Clinton.

In order to attend the conference of the American Library Association which met in Pasadena, May 18-25th, the librarian was permitted to leave three weeks before commencement. The library was in charge of the head cataloguer during that time, and I am glad of this opportunity of expressing my obligation to Miss Baker and to the entire staff for the admirable way in which the library was conducted during this rather trying month.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY L. JONES,
Librarian.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS AND GYMNASTICS.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honour to make the following report on the work of the department of gymnastics and athletics, and on such work of the Health Department as has been under my charge during the year 1910-11.

Health and Physical Examinations.

In October, 1910, 332 students were examined; of these 12 were excused the full strength tests. In April, 1911, 328 were re-examined; of these 20 were excused the full strength tests. These examinations gave the following averages:

College Averages.

	Weight, kg.	Height, cm.	Expansion, Chest. 9th Rib. cm.		Strength, kg.	Lung Capacity, cu. in.
Sem. I.	57.17	162.63	5.62	5.94	311.62	185
Sem. II.	57.59	162.80	5.94	6.28	330.73	187

REPORT OF THE PHYSICIAN IN CHIEF OF THE COLLEGE.

To the President: Madam,

I have the honour to submit the following report of the cases I have attended at Bryn Mawr College from October 1, 1910, to September 30, 1911.

Two students became ill with typhoid fever in the beginning of the college year, having been infected before entering the college. They were transferred to the Bryn Mawr Hospital and made thorough recoveries, one being able to complete her college year.

On March 15, it was deemed wise to close the college for a period of ten days, three cases of scarlet fever having appeared. A senior, a junior and a sophomore, having no work in common, developed symptoms of the disease within thirty-six hours of each other. The infection was presumably contracted in railroad travel.

Following the re-opening of the college, 3 cases of measles, 3 cases of German measles, 2 cases of mumps, and 8 cases of infectious conjunctivitis developed in such rapid succession that the facilities for the care of the patients were entirely inadequate and pointed more clearly than ever before to the necessity of providing an infirmary with proper facilities and equipment.

The surgical work has been minor and insignificant and no fatalities have resulted during the college year.

*Omitted from calculations on account of absence of Professor of Geology.

†In the years 1903-1911 the Department of Geology has offered a two hour elective course in Meteorology and Oceanography. These are omitted in the comparative statement, as the Department of Chemistry offers no such elective courses.

XIV.

At a special meeting of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College held Third Month 31, 1911, the following minute was adopted:

“Information was now received of the death, on 27th inst., of our friend and fellow-member, Justus C. Strawbridge, at his winter home, Thomasville, Georgia.

He was elected a Trustee Fourth Month 13, 1894, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Francis R. Cope, one of the thirteen Trustees appointed in the Will of our Founder, Dr. Joseph W. Taylor.

On entering the Corporation, he at once took an interested and active part in its work and although impaired health and his consequent residence at a distance from Philadelphia, both in summer and winter, made it impossible for him, of latter time, to attend our meetings except on infrequent occasions, his interest in the College continued and he always gave prompt and liberal support to all efforts in its behalf. In former years, when able to give his time and attention to its interests, he gave freely of both, and as an active member of an important committee he found many occasions to further, or to provide, many needed improvements at the College.

Simplicity, sincerity, earnestness, and a certain brotherly kindness, combined with an innate modesty which marked all his benefactions—and they were constant and many—distinguished his character, and made him one with whom it was a privilege to be associated.

He was a striking illustration of the fact that the enthralling, imperative demands of large business affairs need not weaken the finer feelings of human nature nor engross mind and heart to the exclusion of other and unselfish activities. Of good causes and good works, of every kind, he was an active and generous supporter, and while we realize his loss, as a Trustee and Director of this Corporation, and as a personal friend, we recognize that his removal is, as well, a great loss to the city of Philadelphia, which was the scene of his labours for so many years and towards which he had shown, in so many ways, his interest and love.

We would extend to his widow and to his children our heartfelt sympathy and commend them to Him Who alone can comfort those that mourn."

At a stated meeting of the Board of Directors of the Trustees of Bryn Mawr College held Fourth Month 21, 1911, the following minute was adopted:

"The President of the College asked to be permitted to add a few personal words of gratitude to the minute prepared by the Secretary of the Corporation and said that it was difficult to express adequately the debt of the College and of herself as President to Justus C. Strawbridge, that from the time when he joined the Board in 1894 until his health had compelled him to live away from Philadelphia he had always been among the first to give generous support to every plan to improve the College materially and intellectually. Not only was he ready to give liberal financial help but he was also always willing to give time and thought to every matter affecting the College. His sound judgment, his wide business experience, his enthusiasm for progress of every kind made him an invaluable counsellor. He rarely came to the College without suggesting some improvement or offering to make some much needed gift, but his gifts of time and advice were even more generously made. He was an ideal Trustee. His death, following the deaths of so many members of the original Board of Trustees, and their immediate successors, makes us realize afresh that the College owes a great debt of gratitude to the men who have given it such disinterested and self-sacrificing service on its governing board, and to no one does the College owe more than to Justus C. Strawbridge."
